SEES LITTLE HOPE OF AID FOR AIRPORT

Mayor Says Federal Government Would Have To Give Funds To Develop Field.

APPROPRIATIONS SMALL

Check of Records Show City Has Spent $11,000 on Field In 16 Years.

Unless funds are supplied by some federal agency, there is little hope for future development of Mansfield's municipal airport, Mayor William J. Locke said today.

Asked for his views on the transfer of 24 Argentine fliers scheduled to be trained here to another midwestern city because of the poor field facilities in Mansfield, the mayor refused to make a formal statement but discussed the situation briefly.

He pointed out that the program planned for the port's development called for a larger amount of money than local agencies could supply. If the war department should designate Mansfield as an important defense aviation center, he said, the WPA or some other governmental agency would probably finance the greater portion of the cost.

Inspectors of the Civil Aeronautics administration announced Tuesday that the government frowned on the condition of the municipal airport runways and as a result had transferred the training of the Argentine fliers to Lockport, Ill., a city of 20,000 population.

The city purchased the land for the airport in 1925 for $15,000. The bond issue for payment of the purchase has been retired at the rate of $1,000 annually and will be completed in 1943.

During the 16-year period of the city's ownership, about $11,000 has been appropriated for the development or maintenance of the port. City council appropriated $10,000 in 1926 to clear the field and improve it for landing aircraft.

A group of public-spirited citizens raised by public subscription another $16,000 which was put into leveling the ground and installing drainage tile.

Several government-sponsored projects were started during the past 16 years. Large sums of money were appropriated by the government, but little was spent, the money and labor being transferred to other projects, such as street and sewers before construction had made much headway at the field.

Members of the Mansfield chapter of the National Aeronautical association, a group of flying enthusiasts, have given freely of their time and money to keep up the field.

The field is not usable during the spring months when frost is leaving the ground. Runways are soggy and aircraft bog down. Flying is suspended during the heavy rainy seasons.

As Mansfield P. T. A. Groups Staged Jamboree

Members of the Parent-Teacher association held an all-out celebration last night on the completion of their membership drive. Held in John Simpson junior high school, the jamboree was attended by 250 parents who watched skits presented by each of the 14 schools in Mansfield. Marjorie Ferguson, shown top left, represented Bushnell school with a vibraharp selection. Lavonne Bonecutter and Betty Strolein, shown top right, presented an accordion duet as representatives of Newman school. The six Western school rumba dancers in the bottom photograph are, from left to right, Robert Shively, Doris Berno, Wayne Strang, Roanne Farry, Jack Dickson and Georgia Ann McLelland.

JOINS HANDS WITH GARRISON AFTER BATTLE

New Zealand Column Smashes Forward To Aid Men In Libya Port.

FIGHT IN TENTH DAY

Tank, Infantry Struggle Rages on In Desert; Axis Unit Continues Egypt Raid.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO—The seven-month siege of Tobruk, one of history's most dramatic, appeared ended today as the British command announced that a relief column which had recaptured the bloody battleground of Rezegh en route had joined hands this morning with the Tobruk garrison.

New Zealand forces supported by tanks smashed northward this morning to meet a column from the conglomerate Tobruk defenders, made up of British imperial troops and their Polish and Czech allies.

This was the reward of seven months under German and Italian siege.

The Tobruk force came out of its shell and bombarded fortifications on Nov. 18, when the main British drive was launched from the Egyptian border.

The Germans and Italians sought to contain the garrison but, pointed by tanks brought by sea to the besieged port, the men of Tobruk thrust relentlessly through a land mine belt and siege entrenchments to captured Duda yesterday, and juncture with the New Zealanders was effected there early today.

The great tank and infantry battle swirled through its tenth day with both sides throwing in new reserves. The main battle still apparently was about Rezegh, 10 miles south of Tobruk, but was spreading far to the east into Egypt, where the British fought to wipe out an Axis column which drove across the frontier yesterday.

It was here that the most critical battle of the offensive developed as British tanks clashed with German forces. The town was taken, lost and retaken again as

U. S., Nipponese Talks Reported Near Breakdown

Roosevelt Confers Today With Hull and Japan Envoys as Government Insists Force Be Abandoned; Military Move In East Expected Soon.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Unimpeachable sources in Washington today said that Japan may launch an attack against Thailand within the next few days.

Extensive Japanese military preparations for an attack on Thailand or the Burma road, or both, are one of the chief factors which have brought the exploratory talks between the United States and Japan close to a complete breakdown, it was stated.

The United States government, it was said, is insisting that Japan cease the military activities now under way in French Indo-China as a pre-requisite to negotiations for any general understanding between the two countries.

The White House, meanwhile announced that President Roosevelt had scheduled a conference for today with Secretary of State Hull and the two Japanese envoys, Saburo Kurusu and Admiral Nomura, the Japanese ambassador to Washington.

Secretry Hull, in his note to the Japanese envoys last night, also notified Tokyo that the United States is not prepared to negotiate any agreement with Japan unless the Nippon empire accepts the basic American principles.

These principles include Japan's withdrawal from the Axis alliance; Japan's ultimate withdrawal from China and French Indo-China; Japan's renunciation of the policy of aggressive expansion in the Far East, and Japan's recognition of the right of all nations to equality of commercial opportunity in the Far East.

Little hope is held in the highest quarters in Washington that Japan will accept these principles. In fact, official Washington is virtually reconciled to the collapse of the exploratory discussions.

The Japanese military operations in French Indo-China are understood to have been largely responsible for bringing the conversations to a climax at this time. Reports received in Washington have told of large scale movements of Japanese troops toward the Thailand border in French Indo-China during the past few days.

Japanese troop ships have unloaded large numbers of Japanese soldiers with full equipment and supplies for an offensive campaign. Gasoline reserves and am-

BERLIN CLAIMS NEW SUCCESSES

Says 14 Villages Captured on Central Front, Russians Are Repulsed at Rostov.

BULLETIN

KUIBYSHEV, U. S. S. R.—(INS)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia reported today that the Russian military situation on the Volokolamsk sector west and slightly north of Moscow has been "aggravated" in the past 24 hours.

BERLIN — (INS) — New German successes on both the Russian and North African fronts, including capture of 14 Soviet villages, were claimed by the reich today.

Military authorities in Berlin said that German tank divisons on Tuesday in the middle sector of the Russian front captured the 14 villages and "continued their advance to the east."

The war bulletin said that on the Russian front's central and northern sectors "additional progress was made" and that Soviet attacks at and north of Rostov-on-Don were repulsed with heavy losses to the Russians.

Several attempts by the Red army forces at Leningrad to break through the German iron ring there also were said to have been "crushed."

In the English channel, the war communique stated, British motor torpedo boats and German patrol boats clashed during the night.

Several of the British craft were declared to have been damaged by

LETIZIA WAITS U. S. SENTENCE

Mansfielder, Found Guilty of Attempted Extortion, Faces Term In Prison.

Joseph Letizia, 52, of 381 Wayne street, faced a maximum sentence of 40 years in prison today after having been found guilty by a federal court jury in Cleveland on two charges of attempting to extort $3,000 from Joseph Ferrise, 43, of 316 West Sixth street, two years ago.

A jury of six men and six women in Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkins' court deliberated two hours and late yesterday found Letizia guilty of attempting twice to extort funds from Ferrise, Letizia's friend for 31 years.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates, who played a leading part in tracing the extortion notes to Letizia, was one of the government witnesses at the trial. Accompanying him were Identification Officer Ernest C. Fuller and Mrs. Helen McIntyre, police record clerk.

Several Mansfield recidents, including Mayor William J. Locke, E. B. Kallmerten, M. W. Conley, and Leslie K. Wagner acted as

School Teachers, Parents Celebrate Drive's Close

Rumba Dancing, Songs of Gay Nineties Highlight Program Marking End of Membership Campaign.

In a city-wide jamboree complete with everything from rumba dancing to songs of the Gay Nineties, more than 250 Mansfield parents celebrated the completion of the Parent-Teacher association membership drive last night in John Simpson auditorium.

Parents as well as pupils took part in 14 skits—one from each school—in which the different organizations in the P. T. A. competed for audience applause.

On the more serious side of the celebration, Mrs. C. A. McClure, chairman of the membership committee, reported that 3,205 members had been signed up. Woodland school, she said, had the highest number of parents enrolled, with 100 per cent record.

Hedges school, however, had the largest number of members in its organization with 501.

Directing the 14 skits in his capacity as master of ceremonies was C. A. Divelbliss who introduced each number from the stage.

After the program parents and pupils alike were tired, happy and especially hungry when the audience moved to the school cafeteria to obtain refreshments from

Italians Consider Freeing U. S. Men Seized In Libya.

ROME—(INS)—Italian authorities declared today that plans are being considered to release Americans who were taken prisoner by the Italians in Libya. Names of the prisoners so far have not been revealed.

According to an announcement yesterday, the American captives are two American army air force officers who were acting as observers and an unspecified number of American news correspondents.

Roberto Farinacci, noted publicist writing in the newspaper Regima Fascista, advocated liberation and repatriation of the American correspondents. He said. "They are best able to inform the world of the valor and ability of our troops."

CHECK CITY FOR FIRE RATE CUT

Underwriters To Inspect Fire, Water Systems; Insurance Cut of $50,000 Possible.

Approximately $50,000 may be saved annually by Mansfielders in reduced fire insurance premiums if representatives of the National Board of Fire Underwriters scheduled to make an inspection of the city's improved water system next week, report favorably upon it.

Mayor William J. Locke announced today that representatives of the underwriters' group would arrive in the city Monday to inspect the new waterlines which the city has installed in the past two years to increase fire protection.

The mayor said that in addition to the inspection, the inspectors would be asked to make recommendations on the type of fire apparatus the city should purchase with receipts from the half mill fire levy.

The underwriters increased the city's fire insurance premiums several years ago after they reported the city's fire fighting and water distribution systems were inadequate.

Mayor Locke pointed out that although savings up to $50,000 an-

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Early congressional investigation of Charles West's activities in influencing the award of war contracts impended today as Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the house rules committee promised a hearing on a resolution for a general inquiry of "racketeering lobbyists."

The probe was asked by Representative Gehrmann (R-Prog.-Wis.) after West, former Ohio congressman and undersecretary of the interior, sued the Empire Ordnance corporation in New York for $687,000 in commissions on $70,000,000 of war contracts.

Archbishop Calls Garbo Film Dangerous To Morals.

The archbishop's condemnation, following a class C rating given the film by the Legion of Decency, will be read in a pastoral letter at all masses in New York next Sunday.

In his letter, the archbishop said:

"The Legion of Decency has given a class C rating to the film about to be presented under the title of 'Two-Faced Woman.' This rating means the picture is condemned as dangerous to public morals because it is suggestive in its scenes, its dialog and its situations."

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Government economists today predicted that the wave of Christmas buying may reach $5,000,000,000 for the highest level in history.

A commerce department official said that preliminary surveys indicated that "people are in a spending mood and early holiday buying portends an all-time record both in dollar volume and in merchandise volume."

NEW YORK—(INS)—The three-man board named by President Roosevelt to arbitrate the captive coal mine labor issues which brought a strike last week, met today with one member, John L. Lewis, considerably stirred up by an overnight development.

Lewis indicated that he would seek immediate clarification of the position of "little steel" whose representatives reported last night would not be bound by results of the arbitration.

Dr. John R. Steelman, chairman of the board had "nothing to say" on that point as the meeting opened.

Tells Business Men Credit Curb Blocks Inflation Path

With the production of domestic goods curtailed to speed up the nation's defense program, the demand for goods must be reduced by placing restrictions on installment buying or the country will be faced with certain inflation, John W. Kossin of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank said last night in at alk at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Kossin spoke before 200 merchants and representatives of banks and loan agencies at a meeting sponsored jointly by the Mansfield Credit Rating bureau and the Federal Reserve bank of Cleve- last night in a talk at the Mansness men yesterday noon at the Credit club luncheon at the hotel.

"I can bring you no glowing promise or hope of increased business for the duration of the emergency, but I do not believe anyone will be forced to close his doors simply because a limit has been placed upon installment maturities and a floor under down payments," Kossin said at last night's meeting.

"If regulation (which places a limit on credit buying) were not in operation, no merchant would

First Baby Born At Hospital Now A Mother Herself

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Frank, 208 Rhein avenue today, 23 years after Mrs. Frank became the first baby to be born at Mansfield General hospital on May 23, 1918.

In fact, Mrs. Frank was not only the first baby to be born in General hospital the day after it was opened, but she was also one-half of the first set of twins to be born there.

Eli Teeter, Mrs. Frank's father, recalled that the new hospital, not yet completed then, was formerly opened to the public on May 22, 1918.

"My wife was admitted on May 21, and Rev. S. P. Long on the following day, the day of the opening. He was the first patient to be operated on," declared Teeter.

"Lena May (Mrs. Frank) was born on May 23, just 10 minutes before her twin sister, who died one year and 10 months later of pneumonia. Dr. Robert R. Black attended my wife when the twins were born," he added.

Mrs. Frank, who was secretary to former Probate Judge C. J. Anderson until his retirement last winter, was married to Clayton Frank, Westinghouse employe, June 1, 1940.

She attended Prospect, Hedges, and John Simpson schools, and is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school.

Thousands Needed to Help Red Cross Reach Big Quota

Subscriptions from thousands of Mansfield and Richland county residents were needed today to bring the membership of Richland county chapter of the Red Cross up to its quota of 22,000 by the end of the drive three days from now.

L. W. Birch, county Roll Call chairman, predicted today that the county would fall at least 5,000 members short of the largest quota ever set for the county chapter by national headquarters unless Richland countians rallied to the cause.

Basing his predictions upon a chart that he has kept throughout the drive, Birch said he felt "confident that the drive would net between 15,000 and 16,000 members," which would be several thousand higher than the membership of last year.

"I feel the workers are doing a real good job and will show an increase over last year, but there's no indication we will hit the 22,000 quota," he said.

Membership in the county rose sharply today however as Shelby chapter reported obtaining 3,300 members against their quota of 3,700. The Ohio Seamless Tube company at Shelby furnished 940

PREDICT JAP ATTACK SOON ON THAILAND

Washington Officials See Breakdown of Pacific Peace Talks Near.

munition have been moved into southern Indo-China in large quantities by the Japanese forces. Practically every available boat has been requisitioned by the Japanese.

Word of these Japanese military operations convinced the American government, it was stated, that Tokyo was either unable to control the military forces or was not acting in good faith in the conversations in Washington.

For this reason, it was decided to bring about a showdown in the talks by insisting that Japan start withdrawing its forces from French Indo-China and accept the basic principles of American Far Eastern policy.

Authoritative sources confirmed that the United States had been considering the possibilities of a limited agreement or a truce in the Pacific. It was said that the suggestions had been put forward in other interested quarters and that they were given serious consideration as a possible means of prolonging the discussions, but the developments in French Indo-China caused this act to be dropped late yesterday.

In return for acceptance of the American terms, Hull is offering to lift the American economic embargo against Japan; assist the Nippon empire economically and financially to recover from the war in China, and secure for it fair access to raw materials when the European conflict is over.

In Japanese quarters, the view was expressed that acceptance of the American terms would mean a revolution in Japan. These sources said Japan would prefer to risk war rather than a revolution at home.

The government's sudden shift back to Hull's basic principles, after considering the possibility of a compromise truce with Japan in the Pacific, followed a White House conference between the secretary of state and President Roosevelt. Prior to this meeting, the president had conferred with Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese ambassador, and T. V. Soong, special representative of the Chinese government in Washington.

Papers Say Japan Can Wait No Longer

TOKYO—(INS)—Japanese newspapers commenting on the renewed crisis in the Washington negotiations between the United States today generally expressed the view that "Japan can wait no longer."

Most newspapers shared the view of a Papanese (Domei) news agency report to Tokyo from Washington that the "fate of the Washington negotiations will be decided within a few days."

SHANGHAI — (U.P.) — The Liner President Madison, its departure suddenly speeded by two days, sailed today, evacuating from Shanghai the final 360 members of the 4th U. S. Marine regiment which for 14 years had stood guard at the International Settlement.

The sudden change in sailing plans was thought here to indicate possible aggravation of the Pacific crisis.

character witnesses in Letizia's behalf, according to Jerome N. Curtis, assistant U. S. district attorney.

Letizia's sentence will be delayed for a week until he has been investigated by federal probation officers. Such an inspection is routine in cases when it is the prisoner's first offense. Letizia is liable for sentences of 20 years on each of the counts.

The federal grand jury last March 8 charged that Letizia sent two threatening letters to Ferrise. The indictment said the second letter, dated March 22, 1939, read: "You are a dirty corps because you have told the law about our affair. But in brief you will have bloody sorrow."

Letizia had been at liberty under $1,500 bond pending his trial.

Bates and Fuller testified that the letter was written on a typewriter in the office of Rickets and Nichols, Mansfield printers. They said they found the typewriter only after weeks of searching. Letizia, who is the head of an Italian lodge, visited the print shop occasionally to have printing done for the lodge.

Fuller testified that the prints of Letizia's thumb and index finger were found on the paper on which the letter was written.

direct shell hits, and the communique said two of the British boats "must be counted a total loss."

German planes during the night bombed harbor installations on the English southwest coast, the war bulletin added, stating that British attempts to raid northwesern German coastal regions during the night were "without effect."

"From Nov. 19 to 25," the communique added, "the British air force lost 91 planes, 68 of which were lost in the Mediterranean region and North Africa.

"During the same period 29 of our own planes were lost in the battle against Great Britain."

Russians Declare They Hold Ground

KUIBYSHEV — (INS) — Mighty battles raged furiously all around the defensive arc protecting Moscow today as the Nazis kept hammering relentlessly at Red army positions.

But latest reports indicated the Russians were holding their ground and that once again the Germans were running into a stone wall of resistance.

In the Klin sector, about 50 miles northwest of Moscow, there was tremendous fighting but a confused situation. Latest Soviet front-line advices said the Germans were attacking repeatedly, and that each Nazi assault was followed by a determined Russian counter-attack.

Around Stalinogorsk, southeast of Moscow, where the Germans have been trying to push around the capital's southern flank in a vast encircling maneuver, the Moscow radio reported "stubborn Soviet resistance." It was conceded the Germans were making a new thrust in this region.

Meanwhile, the Moscow radio listed terrific German losses. It said the Soviets had "annihilated" 13,500 Germans in fighting around Kalinin, northwest of Moscow, so far this month.

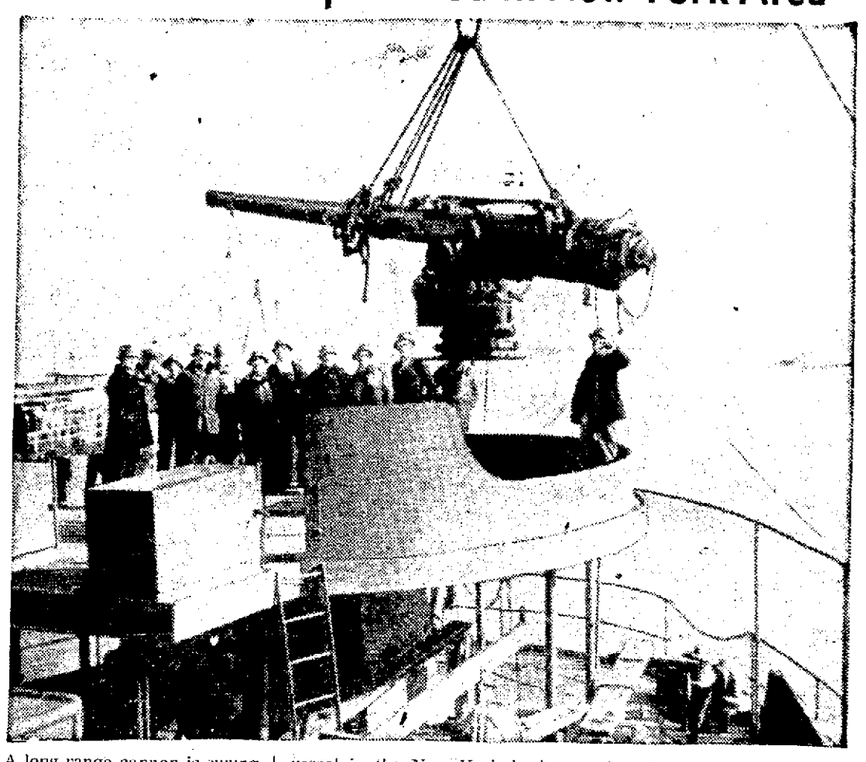
First U. S. Ship Armed In New York Area



A long-range cannon is swung into position aboard a U. S. merchantman docked at Hoboken, N. J., making it the first vessel in the New York harbor area to be armed against submarine, surface and air raiders. Several steel turrets were visible on the decks for mounting anti-aircraft guns. The wheelhouse and other vital portions of the ship had been covered with concrete as protection against aerial bombs.

nually could be made if the premiums were reduced that these reductions would be confined to downtown business places and industrial plants.

WPA workers early this year completed construction of two new heavy-service water lines which afford all sections of the city adequate water supply for fire fighting. The city had entered into a water line building program following the report of the Gascoigne company, which surveyed the local water situation.

Previously, the downtown section, received very little water pressure and firemen were hampered in their efforts to extinguish fires. At present, however, uniform pressure may be obtained in practically every part of the city.

George Tatnall, director of the underwriters, informed Mayor Locke that two inspectors would arrive in the city on Dec. 1 to begin their inspection. He also congratulated the city on its passage of the half mill fire levy.

Mayor Locke said that the city had carried out practically all of the underwriters' recommendations except the purchase of new fire equipment and that it was ready to do this upon advice from the insurance group.

have any more customers' goods to sell. Priorities would govern that feature," he pointed out.

"The dealer or lender very possibly will find he may be more selective in his credit risks. His loss ratios may be reduced. Customers' equity also will be maintained and maturities will not carry over to periods when real income may be reduced, collateral is worn out, and repossessions are likely to result," Kossin added.

"In order to be the arsenal of the democracies of the world and strengthen our own defenses, we must increase production to heights of which we have little comprehension. We know now that present program is too large to permit our having guns and butter, too.

"Today's problems are so big and they are coming so fast that it strains us to the limit to keep abreast of them," Kossin said. "About a year ago we embarked on a defense program costing 28 billion dollars. Four months ago this figure stood at 40 billion. Today we have mapped out expenditures of about 66 billion dollars and we are still going strong.

"During the entire period of the first World war our total government expenditures, outside normal operating costs, amounted to only one-half this amount, or 33 billion dollars, and this amount included our cash loans to the Allies.

"As a nation, we are facing shortages of everything but money and if funds available were being used at normal rates, we probably would have too much of that. We are now in the position of fighting destructive forces from without as well as from within our borders. Either war or inflation could alter our way of life."

the heavy fighting swayed along the desert.

The British admitted that part of the Axis raiding party which thrust across the Egyptian frontier in the Sidi Omar sector, apparently to divert British forces from the main battle, still was operating on Egyptian soil.

The RAF supported the land forces by heavy attacks on German and Italian concentrations west of Rezegh, where several tanks and transport vehicles were destroyed, the communique said.

The occupation of Eir Bir El Hamed "in the face of heavy opposition" also was reported.

Fresh British and Axis reserve strength charged into the battle for Libya as a new and, perhaps, even fiercer phase of the struggle between armored armies flared on the western desert.

After nine exhausting days in which tank forces on both sides have been ground down by almost ceaseless action, British sources said the whole campaign might turn on whose reserve strength is greater.

British tanks previously held in reserve were reported already to have reached the battlefield and the British counted heavily on their ability to speed more reinforcements into the desert.

They expressed belief that General Erwin Rommel, who also has reinforced his Axis armies, had come close to scraping bottom of his reserves and probably would be able to get few more tanks or heavy guns across the Mediterranean.

Neither side, apparently, was sparing planes. One report said almost constant fighter battles were in progress and that the Germans were calling heavily on Messerschmitts from Crete to bolster their land forces.

of these members today and the chapter reported it was "still going strong" in its roll call drive.

Shelby's report brought the county Roll Call figure up to 11,207 today. Mansfield's own report stood at 7,907 when the last total was taken although Birch expected this figure to pass the Mansfield enrollment of last year, 8,955, before the day ended.

Local Roll Call workers reported 497 new members since yesterday and additional cash contributions of $772.45 bringing the total contributions up to $10,954.24.

Mansfield had passed the halfway mark in the quota of 15,300 set for the city, while reports from rural areas, faced with a quota of 3,000, were still unavailable.

Mansfield industry was credited by Birch with doubling or more than doubling its Roll Call subscriptions this year and promptly reporting to headquarters. At least 30 factories have completed their reports leaving only about 14 still to come in.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1941.

Predictions are dangerous—except possibly some such one as: "There'll be no railroad strike."

Too bad that the metal shortage has not yet reached the point of cleaning up those automobile junk yards that mar the beauty of the countryside.

It's at least interesting to recall that today would have been Thanksgiving day if it hadn't taken President Roosevelt three years to admit his mistake.

Mansfield's Airport Disapproved

MANSFIELD'S slowness in developing the municipal airport, for which a 189-acre farm four miles north of the city was bought in 1925, is difficult to understand—in view of rapid progress in aviation and the speed with which many other cities—including a number much smaller than Mansfield—have moved toward providing modern airport facilities.

Decision by the Civil Aeronautics administration to send a group of Argentina fliers to another airport for advanced training, instead of bringing them here as had been planned, is merely another incident that tends to reveal Mansfield's backwardness in the new and growing field of aviation.

While the main investment in local airport equipment has thus far been from private instead of public funds, this must be recognized as a legitimate public enterprise and one which merits favorable consideration by city council in the apportionment of funds.

Greatest immediate need at the airport is for some hard-surfaced runways and night-lighting facilities. Display of greater interest by city and citizenship would, in all probability, result in working out a plan by which this could be accomplished next spring and summer.

Mansfield's location is such as to make it an ideal aviation center for north central Ohio mail, express and passenger service—but further procrastination is likely to result in loss of what will later be recognized as a valuable asset.

Charles West Claims $687,000 Fee

NO MORE astounding story has developed in connection with federal defense expenditures, insofar as residents of Mansfield and this Seventeenth congressional district are concerned, than the one which told of Charles West, former congressman from this district, filing suit against a New York ordnance company, claiming $687,000 due him as fees for obtaining munitions orders totaling $70,000,000.

It appears, according to the petition, that the company was to pay West $1,000 a month as an advance to be deducted from "earnings" and that $13,000 admitted to have been paid, plus the $687,000 claimed, represents one per cent commission on the stated $70,000,000 worth of orders, all apparently obtained within a period of three or four months.

This, if carried on in a regular way, would represent an annual earning power of something above $2,000,000 in commissions, "fees," or whatever you may choose to call them—and those who know Charlie West best will be much inclined to doubt a life-time earning capacity of $687,000—to say nothing of his claim to having "earned" that much in a few months by landing defense contracts for a client.

It is gratifying to learn that at least one congressman, B. J. Gehrmann, of Wisconsin, has introduced a bill designed to reveal activities of what he calls "racketeering lobbyists."

In the midst of non-defense extravagance and defense wastefulness, with rapidly mounting federal debt and already overburdened taxpayers, it will be interesting to learn if former college professor Charles West, or any other New Deal favorite, is in position to wangle fabulous sums out of the national emergency, while millions of other Americans are being asked to sacrifice even the ordinary comforts of living.

If the New Deal administration, or anyone associated therewith, regards the services of Charlie West worth $687,000 through any length of time that might be mentioned—up to well above a hundred years—many of the things that have mystified the public will be better understood.

Price Control Made Difficult

ALTHOUGH the administration and some congressional leaders have been side-stepping any form of wage "ceiling" in proposed price control legislation there is a growing feeling in and out of congress that there must be some stopping place in the upward trend of wages if dangerous inflation is to be prevented.

Two wage control proposals have so far been made. One would impose a definite ceiling on wages, as of a given date, and would impose the same kind of a ceiling on prices at the same time. The other proposal is more elastic, and would give the price administration authority to control wages when it believed that further increases would be of an inflationary character.

There is obviously room for disagreement as to details of wage control legislation. There is, however, no ground for believing that anything resembling workable price control can be effected if wages are permitted to soar without restraint. The price trend today is to a large extent the result of the many wage increases. The cost of both farm and industrial labor is reaching near-record peaks—and this is directly reflected in the wholesale price index.

Secretary Morgenthau has warned the country of the imminent danger of real inflation. Industries, in both the producing and the distributing fields, are doing all they can to hold down prices. But so long as wages and all other costs move to higher levels, these efforts cannot achieve full success.

Golden Monkey Captured

MAYBE a blue-faced monkey with golden hair isn't just what civilization needs for its salvation today, but there is rejoicing that one was captured alive in China recently. Word has traveled from the wilds of Szechwan province to Chungking, and thence to directors of the Bronx zoo in America that the specimen is now thriving on leaves and nuts at West China Union university at Chengtu.

A delighted representative of the zoo says the golden monkey is one of the rarest animals in the world and a live one in captivity far beyond anyone's expectations. He hopes that this prize will be brought safely to New York.

Too bad nobody knows what the golden monkey thinks of his captors and of the human race at this stage of its history.

Teacher Tells 'Em

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

COMES now Teacher, to be Columnist-for-a-Day. Not the neat and nosey female of our childhood days, but a husky male with a double-action wallop. Raymond R. Shull, of Monticello, Ill. And does he dish it out. Judge for yourself!

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"It is going to take considerable courage to write this letter, perhaps even more for you to print it. But since yours seems to be the only newspaper column which has the gumption to tackle Reality, I am going to ask a question which has long been troubling me, in the hope that you'll make 'The World Listen.'

"Although I am a loyal and enthusiastic American educator I find myself rebelling against our present system of education. There have been tremendous and, I think, tragic changes in the last 15 years. Children pass through our schools in the approved time with the desired credits. Yet, having graduated from high school, what do they actually know . . . what can they actually do? Almost nothing! Meager as was the instruction in the 'little red schoolhouse' of grandpa's time, it gave young America a much more practical approach to life than our present program.

"I do not blame the teachers for this . . . nor the students. I blame the parents who demand high rating for their children without adequate behavior . . . and who penalize the teachers if they do not produce such deceptive results.

"When I was attending grade school, in the 20's, we were expected to do some honest studying. But now we don't dare ask Johnny to do a little extra homework without receiving a blast from his indignant parent, who fears we are driving him into a nervous breakdown. No schools, in any civilized nation, are as lax in their educational demands as our American institution. And, I repeat, it is largely the parents' fault . . . easy-going parents who are so indifferent about their own responsibilities that they encourage their children to be indifferent in theirs.

"WHEN AND WHERE IS YOUNG AMERICA GOING TO LEARN TO WORK AND DEVELOP SOME GOOD, OLD FASHIONED, STICK-TO-ITIVENESS?

"Our latest schedule seems to be plenty of play (called 'school activities'), plenty of leisure, yet no real hard work AND HIGH MARKS FOR DOING NOTHING. Once, parents checked with teacher on a youngster's progress. Today they barely glance at his card, yet raise Cain (with the teacher!) if he doesn't have high marks. And, since the teacher usually depends on the taxpayer for his job, Johnny generally gets what mama and papa want.

"The whole thing is a rotten preparation for life. It panders to the parents' false pride but what does it do to the child? Why should he be led to think that he is a superior thinker when he has only a mediocre or undeveloped mind?

"He will have to produce the goods when he gets out into life . . . then why not start now? We despise Hitler and all his works. Yet I'm forced with shame, to admit that Germany trains her children far more honestly than we do ours.

"Consider the disgusting infantile complaints which are coming from our defense camps. There is fine human material in those camps—the best in the world. But those boys have been so dominated by arrogant, ambitious mothers and complaisant fathers that they are unable to face reality and feel abused if they are forced to do so.

"WHAT HAVE WE DONE TO THOSE HONEST, SELF-RESPECTING AMERICAN PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH OUR FATHERS FOUGHT AND DIED?

"Tell us, Elsie—and make it strong!"

RAYMOND R. SHULL

If your own brave words haven't "told 'em," R. R. S., mine must fail. But I'm thinking you've done a big job for America today. And, in the name of every honest parent and teacher, I thank you—and wish there were more like you.

Loans Make Prices.

Uncle Sam, through his Department of Agriculture, offers to lend farmers 74.8 cents a bushel on this year's corn crop. That doesn't mean much to the average city dweller until he learns that high-priced corn means high-priced meat, and meat already is much higher priced than it has been before since the period of inflated prices after World war I.

What do loans have to do with prices? They make them. At least, they guarantee them, for Uncle Sam doesn't use the care of other loaning agencies. He ostensibly takes the farmer's corn as security, but lending full value on stuff accepted as security isn't very secure. Both parties distinctly understand that whenever the corn market drops below the 74.8 cents a bushel, the farmer can say, "Uncle, that corn is yours. I'll keep your money and the deal is closed!"

So, while Uncle Sam is threatening to put ceilings over prices, he is laying his cash on the line to keep corn prices and meat prices up.—Detroit News.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Pass the Buck.

"Passing the buck" is a colloquialism deriving from the gaming room.

In many card games, a marker is stood before the player whose turn it is to deal.

For one or more of the following reasons, this marker came to be called the "buck."

It was originally made of buck or beechwood; or in the shape of a male deer, goat, sheep, hare or rabbit, each of which is commonly known as a buck; or in the form of a gay, dashing young fellow, a dandy, or a male Indian or Negro, each of whom is popularly called a buck.

In any event, the marker would rotate from player to player, so that the expression "passing the buck" came to be used naturally for "It's up to you,"—at first in the sense of "to deal," and finally colloquially, "to assume responsibility."

Hence "passing the buck" for shifting it.

Odlum Worried Over Failure to Break Little Business Bottleneck

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Republican National Chairman Joe Martin isn't advertising it yet, but he has found an issue which he thinks may swing the house of representatives against Roosevelt in 1942. It is the "Raw Deal given to Little Business Men by the New Deal."

This has the New Deal itself frantically worried, for the latest defense experiment to protect little business has just blown up.

This is the inside reason behind the trip of Floyd Odlum to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn. Officially it's ulcers. But back of that is worry over failure to spread war contracts among little business men.

It hasn't been announced yet, but Odlum is getting out. He is going back to Wall Street where he finds running big business a lot easier than trying to take war contracts away from big business and give them to little business.

Odlum, who is head of the Atlas Corporation, outsmarted some of the best brains in Wall Street, but he found he couldn't break through the rampart of army-navy brass hats, the OPM One-Dollar-Men and all the other red tape artists who believed in throwing contracts in the easiest direction—to big business—and letting little business go into bankruptcy.

Wall Street Wizard Odlum set up the Contracts Distribution Division of OPM, but after he has spent three months in mastermind, the little business problem is still as acute as when Odlum tackled it. If anything it's worse. The vehemence and number of complaints have increased so greatly that Democratic leaders are up in arms and have taken their fears direct to the White House.

Defense Stepchild.

ODLUM has accomplished some results. He has doubled subcontracting. But these orders, impressive by themselves, have not kept pace with the rapid widening and deepening of the little business crisis—as material, labor and other shortages have increasingly curtailed non-defense production.

Drastically needed is a surgical reorganization of the whole defense contracting system, making little business an integral part of defense production instead of a step-child to whom a few scraps are thrown occasionally when its yelling becomes annoying.

The big complaint against Odlum is that instead of tackling this basic difficulty immediately, he built up an elaborate administrative organization that looked grandiose on paper but did not keep the wolf from the door of small business. Time is of the essence these fast-moving days. Scores of little plants are shutting down daily. Good intentions, no matter how good, won't keep them going.

Odlum was too polite, too anxious to get along with people, was too steeped in Wall Street salve. He talked about joining the army and trying to do his job as a commissioned officer. What he needed to do was get up and squawk until he got something for little business.

The only thing he got was ulcers—for himself.

That "Evil Old Man."

IT HAS been a long time since Jack Garner and the late Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas went to see the president of the United States about John L. Lewis. But the ex-vice president, sitting in his stocking feet on his front porch in Uvalde these days, still remembers it.

As Mr. Garner tells the story, he was a bit worried for fear he would not have the nerve to speak his mind fully to the president, so he slipped a pint bottle of rye in his pocket. And when he got to the White House he went into a washroom and took a couple of healthy swigs.

"Then I stepped in," recounts Garner, "and I said, 'Franklin, this man Lewis will sink you. You may not realize it now, but if you let him stay in the same boat with you, he'll sink you in the end.'"

Garner says that he spoke his piece with considerable vigor but he feared it made little impression—at least at the time.

Note:—It was some time later that Lewis called Garner "an evil, whisky-drinking, poker-playing old man."

Slow Mexican Relations.

THE NEW agreement with Mexico is one of the most important recent contributions to our Good Neighbor policy. But the inside fact is that the president and his advisers required a long time to sell it to Secretary of State Hull. He didn't seem to like it at all.

Actually the Mexican agreement was negotiated on September 1. Although the president approved it almost immediately, Cordell Hull held it up for two months and 19 days.

The agreement provides for the stabilization of the Mexican peso in the same way we have helped to peg the pound sterling; for a Mexican road building program underwritten by the United States; also a trade treaty; and a cash payment by Mexico on claims of American citizens. Finally, it lays the ground for conciliation of the oil dispute which has disrupted American-Mexican relations for several years.

It was this oil proposal which apparently got in Cordell Hull's craw.

However, October 1 was finally set for the signing of the agreement, and the Mexicans brought their Minister of Finance, Eduardo Saurez, up from Mexico City. But suddenly something happened, and the state department postponed the signing until October 5.

Then as the Mexicans once again were ready to sign, the state department postponed once more. Again there was a mysterious wait. Then Secretary Morgenthau actually told the press that the agreement would be signed October 12.

But once again, as the Mexicans prepared for the final formality, the State Department held up the deal.

Oil In Background.

THE president had approved the agreement. Secretary Morgenthau had OK'd his end of it. Jesse Jones had approved the $30,000,000 credit for road building, and Undersecretary of State Welles had worked out all the details. But the secretary of state needed more time. Undersecretary Welles advised that no one rush his chief: so everyone sat tight for almost another month.

Finally, the date of November 19 was set for the signature. The Mexican delegates sat in the Mayflower hotel. A bellboy paged "Mr. Farish and Mr. Armstrong." It was William S. Farish and Thomas R. Armstrong, president and vice president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, being summoned to their last conference with Mr. Hull.

The secretary of state finally had been won over. In the end he issued a nice statement in favor of the agreement, though also insisting to the end that the agreement did not bind the oil companies.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Congratulations Dept.: I see where Reed Lawton has been giving the kids a break, with his American Civic Opera Co., by taking some of the awe out of art. He goes around the country presenting the well-known operas, but the matinees are for kids. They've been streamlined for action, with emphasis on arson, poisoning, and sword play.

Reed himself never appears in the matinees, but he is there. Recently a two-headed youngster of six plopped down in the next seat and whispered: "When do the movies begin?"

"In about five minutes," said Reed.

"Is it gonna be Micky Mouse or Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?"

Reed explained that it wasn't a movie; it was an opera. They were going to put on "Rigoletto." With lots of action, and singing.

"But that's sissy," the kid protested. He was let-down. "What's it about?" he finally inquired.

"Mur-r-rder!" Reed mouthed the word.

"It is! Why didn't you say so!"

Just then the curtain went up and pretty soon the kid was absorbed in the story of the hunchback and his beautiful daughter. The blood and thunder got underway. It was a howling success.

When I asked Lawton about this, he explained: "We always choose operas with plenty of action for matinees. The kids demand it. They've got to have it. The more serious operas are reserved for their parents."

Culture's answer to the Lone Ranger . . . . . .

THE theater is going to get along all right, but it would be a better season if Bob Sherwood were contributing dramas rather than giving his time to the government . . . Don't get me wrong. I'm glad the government has such a find in the tallest dramatist on earth. Bob Sherwood casts a long shadow in more than one way. On the hoof, he is six foot seven. In the theater, he has written three Pulitzer prize winning plays, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which summed up the essence of democracy; "Idiot's Delight" which was a blast against Fascism, and "There Shall Be No Night," which pleads for resolution and courage in a world trampled by international gangsters.

Recently, Sherwood hurried to England to study the English method of shortwave broadcasts. That's what he's doing now, for this country. His boss is Wild Bill Donovan. Their offices are on Madison Avenue. He shuttles between New York and Washington with the regularity of a commuter, and when in Washington he stays at the White House.

Some time ago Sherwood, who once came pretty close to becoming a wealthy man, saw $103,000 of his hard earned funds disappear with his financial adviser. Shortly after this in Washington he received the Pulitzer award for "There Shall Be No Night." The president was there and he asked Sherwood if a cash sum didn't go with the award. "Yes," replied Sherwood, "one thousand dollars."

"Maybe," grinned the president, "we'd better appoint somebody to look after it for you."

A Farmer's Diary

Cabin on the Lake

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IF YOU have driven along the north end of Mifflin lake—newly created by the Charles Mill dam conservancy project, you may have noticed a log cabin high on a woodsy knob, and you may have exclaimed, "My, wouldn't I like to go up there and see what it's like!"

We went—at the owner's invitation. Chiefest of the delights of writing this daily column have been such opportunities to share the results of our readers' experience.

The cabin isn't antique. Even from down on the highway it looks new and modern and just a bit flamboyant, with the ends of the logs painted red and the windows rimmed with sparkling white . . . like a young girl with painted nails masquerading in her great grandmother's dress. Electricity is there, and a steep narrow limestone drive along the curve of the hill.

Our old car, with wife and I in front and the back piled full of children, went snorting up to the top and stopped with a crack from the exhaust, beside two ranks of cordwood at the rear. The owners, a city engineer and his stately wife, came out. We told them who we were, and all talking at once, we stood and looked—and looked.

The view is rarely beautiful—a panorama of hills and water and a distant rural village. Out where the water was white with ripples huge flocks of wild waterfowl could be seen. Government reservation—game refuge—begins just across the highway.

"How did it happen that you two—past middle life—left town to move out to a cabin on an uncleared hill?" I wondered.

"Our cabin has been a dream for more than 20 years," he confessed. "One summer we picnicked down there in the ravine, and afterward climbed up this brambly knob and that view got hold of us. We both knew that here was where we wanted to put our cabin."

"I helped him cut the logs," declared his wife. "People thought us just a bit crazy, at first, but my health improved from the outdoor work and it was great fun to think and plan and build, together. Now property values have gone way up—and we have our home! Come inside—it's remarkable how much living can go on in a very small space!"

Three windows overlooked the lake view. A squatty little wood stove shed inviting warmth. A kettle simmered. Behind a screen was a wide, comfortable bed. Linoleum floor — rough rafters. Gleaming electric stove — shiny electric refrigerator.

"I'm having guests from town for Sunday," his wife told mine. "We're collecting old colonial pieces to furnish the big cabin, when we build it."

"We have about all anyone really needs, I guess," observed the man, stretching out his feet contentedly toward the stove. And he might have added that they have what puts real zest into life. Their home is an adventure.

Words of the Wise

What greater thing is there for two human souls than to feel that they are joined for life—to strengthen each other in all labor, to rest on each other in all sorrow, to minister to each other in all pain, to be one with each other in silent, unspeakable memories at the moment of the last parting?—George Eliot.

The Walls Came Tumbling + +

By Joseph McCord

CHAPTER II

The town defined him variously, from being utterly worthless to the easier and more lenient verdict of "funny." He was nobody's fool. Many were wary of his manner of speech which so often was mockingly polite, lilted with unfamiliar allusions. Yet he could be entertaining if he chose. Never more so than when leaning gracefully against the Hanscomb House bar, one foot on its rail and turning a whisky glass slowly in his slim fingers as he delivered an opinion or recounted some experience. Then, he could make the veriest commonplace sound like poetry, although he drank moderately and handled his liquor as a gentleman should. And his rapier-like tongue could reduce any garrulous inebriate into shamed or sulky mumblings.

Carol knew all these things but, to her, he was a superior being and she was passionately devoted to him. During these later years her love for him had assumed something of a maternal aspect, in spite of the fact that he was perfectly able to defend himself against anything and anybody. But he was her "Andy."

She called him that at his insistence.

He still was in the background of her thoughts as she sorted through Doctor Silverthorne's delinquents at his old roll-top desk. Almost mechanically she laid aside cases who should be able to pay something on account and probably would not. The oldest offenders were reserved for the top of the desk so that the doctor would not become discouraged as he calculated the possibilities. She always did it that way.

The task was nearly completed when a nervous start sent a card fluttering from her fingers to the floor. The siren on the roof of the fire hall was emitting its whining roar. Carol darted to the window in time to see a scattering of the assembled chairs in the open doorway. Men were running. The motor of the red pumper coughed; then followed resounding explosions.

As the crimson vehicle roared into the open, Andre leaped gracefully on its running board. He was not a member of the Alert Volunteers but a self-appointed buff who seldom failed to respond to an alarm. He looked up at the window across the street, glimpsed Carol and saluted boyishly with his fan. She waved back then lingered as the wailing of the klaxon grew fainter and fainter. Apparently the fire was not close at hand.

She had finished with her cards and was deep in a romance from the drugstore's library when another interruption came. Her head lifted at the sound of slow footsteps in the hall, a peculiar progress that somehow made her know that the person was limping and would be coming in. The door opened and a man stood framed there. A stranger. And young.

He was bareheaded. His black hair receded in waves off a sunburned forehead. There was something grim in the set of his square jaw and he was scowling, even after his eyes rested on Carol's eagerly attentive face.

"Hello, nurse," he offered shortly. "Is the doctor about?"

"No, sir. But I expect him before very long." She left her chair and came toward him. "Have you hurt yourself?"

"I'm afraid so." His mouth relaxed in a slight smile that made Carol think of her father. "I saw the doctor's sign out front . . . thought the Silverthorne might be a hunch. This is the case of a rusty nail."

"Oh! You've run a nail in your foot!"

"I didn't miss."

"Please sit down." She indicated a chair in her best professional manner.

"And read an ancient magazine I suppose," was the ungracious retort. Nevertheless, he hobbled to the big rocking chair and dropped into it.

"No. I want you to let me see your foot. Take off your shoe."

His gray eyes stared up into her brown ones. Soberly.

"Dear lady, don't you know that a man's bare foot is the ignoblest work of God?"

Carol raised her brows a trifle at the patient's estimate of the male foot.

"Grown-ups' feet aren't supposed to be beautiful. I never saw but one pair that was."

"Yours?"

The stranger had crossed his knees and was undoing the lace of his right shoe. His glance shifted to Carol's trim suede oxfords.

"No. Not mine."

He said no more, only gave a grunt of discomfort as he removed the shoe and bared his foot. Carol leaned closer.

"Can you tell if it went in deep? Was it a long nail?" she asked.

"I thought it came out the top, but I see it didn't. Long enough to hurt like the devil." He exhibited his sole and punctured instep.

"A rusty nail, you say?"

"Nice and rusty. Yes, I know it's dangerous," he added harshly. "I heard all about that when I was a kid. I've been expecting my jaws to lock any minute. But I hope they don't until I get a chance to talk to . . . a party."

"You must see the doctor about that foot," Carol interposed gravely. "It could be dangerous of course. Will you let me disinfect it and put some gauze on it while you're waiting for Doctor Silverthorne?"

"Go ahead."

He watched her curiously as she prepared a swab with deft fingers and dipped it in a bottle she brought from the inner office. "I'm afraid this will hurt a little."

"Are you telling me?" He winced as the treatment got under way and Carol noticed his brown fingers tighten their clasp on his ankle. She applied a bit of sterile gauze and snipped a length of adhesive from its spool to hold it in place.

"Where did you have your accident?" she inquired. "I hope it wasn't on our streets. If it was, I'll report it."

"Oh, no. I can't blame your town altogether." He was replacing his sock. "I was prowling through an old building out near the tracks. It's a wreck mostly."

"You must mean the Jericho Canning plant. They went out of business a long time ago."

"I gathered as much. Some name your burg has." Once more his mouth relaxed in a near smile. "This all makes me think of the story of the Good Samaritan. In more ways than one."

There was an answering smile in Carol's eyes as she rose to her feet. "I hope you're not inferring that you've fallen among thieves on your way."

His answer was prompt, but accompanied by an inscrutable stare. "You may have something there. I wasn't thinking of that, though . . . merely of your kindness as a binder-upper."

"But you will wait and see the doctor?"

"Yes, I'll see him. But I want to go down on the street for a few moments. Most of the citizenry seems to have gone to a fire."

"I expect so." Carol smiled at the memory of her father's debonair fan waving. "It must have been out in the country somewhere," she conjectured. "The engine hasn't come back yet."

"Does the doctor of the imposing name have evening hours?"

"Yes, sir. From six-thirty to eight."

"That's fine. I'll drop up." The patient drew on his shoe gingerly but did not lace it.

"I wish you would. And I wouldn't walk about any more than I had to." Carol had seated herself again at the desk. "Will you please let me have your name?"

"Dennison. C. H."

"Um . . . Make it Jericho for the moment. It appears to me I'm registered at the hotel over the way. Hanscomb, is it?"

"Yes, sir." She regarded him with a slightly puzzled air, but forbore asking further questions. She would have liked to.

"I thank you very much for your kindness, Miss . . ." He paused in his limping progress to the door.

"Miss Delaine," she told him.

"Delaine?" Again that inscrutable stare. "Odd . . . May I ask how you spell it?"

"D-e-l-a-i-n-e."

"Your ancestors must have been French."

"I believe they were. I don't know very much about them."

"It's probably just as well," was his cryptic comment. "Goodbye." And he was gone.

It was after 5 when Doctor Silverthorne came back from his call. Carol could hardly wait for him to get off his hat before she started to tell him about her patient.

"He had stepped on a nail, a long one and rusty," she said.

"Now, now, take it easy, young lady. He's not the first man to step on a nail and I don't think he'll be the last. At least he won't be the last if he takes care of it."

But Carol was excited. It wasn't often that she had a chance to take care of a patient and this was no ordinary patient. She had been thinking about him all afternoon, almost to the exclusion of all other matters. He wasn't a handsome man, but there was something interesting about him. She wondered what had brought him to Jericho and how long he would be here. He didn't look like a salesman. There was an out-of-doors suggestion about him. She was really solicitous about his injured foot and betrayed it in her report to the doctor.

"All right Carol, you seem to have fixed him up first rate."

"Oh, thank you doctor."

"And did you tell him to stay off it and come and let me take a look at it?"

"Yes. And he promised he would."

"And did you fill out a card for him?"

"Yes, I did that too." Carol smiled, ever so slightly.

"I reckon it won't give him any trouble," was the doctor's notion. "For his sake I hope he comes back. Always danger of infection if those things aren't looked after at the start."

"That's what I was afraid of."

"Did you sort out my cards?"

"Yes, sir. They're over there on the desk beside the file boxes."

"I'll go through them tonight."

At the supper table Carol's thoughts were diverted from the incident by her father's account of the afternoon fire.

"It was on Jed Harper's place . . . off Thirty-Six after you cross Middle Run," he explained in answer to a question from Aunt Cassie. "You can see the big red barn from the highway . . . house sits in a grove of maples."

"Of course I know the place. Was it a bad fire?"

"Good fire. It took the barn and the silo. All his hay. He'd got a few head of stock out by the time we rolled in. The boys kept the fire from spreading. That was about all they could do since Jed's two cisterns were not any too full. One Centertown company was there and half the cars in the county."

"What a shame," sighed Carol. "I hope Mr. Harper was insured."

SHOW GOES ON

Even Arrest of Stage Manager Fails To Halt Production.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—(INS)—The show went on in keeping with the best theatrical traditions—even though the stage manager, Frederic L. Eisenmann, 32, Lynn, was held at Framingham state police barracks for an automobile law violation.

This was disclosed after the audience hailed the showing of "Rain," starring Lenore Ulric, at the Cambridge Summer Theater.

Eisenmann was stopped for speeding on the Worchester Turnpike. He explained to state trooper Usha Malkasian that he was hurrying to Cambridge to superintend raising of the curtain for the play—but his driver's license had expired and the stage manager was held at the barracks until he could raise bail, after curtain time.

OPERA TO BRING NOTED SINGERS TO MANSFIELD

Cast Announced For 'Barber of Seville' To Be Given In Auditorium Dec. 9.

Opera singers whose names have been prominently associated with music both in this country and abroad will appear in Mansfield Tuesday, Dec. 9, when the American Opera company presents Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," at two performances in the Senior high school auditorium.

Mansfield Music Study club, sponsoring the opera as a benefit for the club scholarship fund, has received the roster of artists to appear in Mansfield, Mrs. George Hall, president of the club, announced today.

Vincent Mattina, lyric baritone, will sing the role of "Figaro," after recently appearing in New York in "Rigoletto." Mattina has apeared with Martinelli, Metropolitan artist, on several occasions, one of them, a concert under the auspices of the Royal Imperial Italian Embassy at the Hotel Plaza in New York.

The score of the Rossini work will be sung by a cast of six principals who will offer the opera virtually in its entirety eliminating only extraneous matter for the purpose of concision.

Agata Borzi, young Italian-American and the leading soprano of the company, will sing "Rosina." The singer made her debut in Rome at the age of 19 and her presentation to American audiences was made in Philadelphia as "Gilda" in "Rigoletto."

Brooks Dunbar, tenor, is a native of Philadelphia. He has appeared with the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra and the National Symphony orchestra in Washington, D. C. Dunbar will be heard as the "Count of Almaviva."

Says New Device Ends Menace of 'One-Eyed' Car

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A 22-year-old Cleveland inventor believes he has whipped the traffic menace known as "the one-eyed automobile."

A device called the "Lite-Guard has been perfected by Robert Bratt which automatically and immediately switches current from a burned out filament of a headlamp to the other undamaged filament, leaving the auto with both lights operating.

Bratt began work on his invention more than two years ago after narrowly escaping a serious crash with another automobile which was showing only one light.

Without laboratory facilities he worked on the kitchen table. Asked what would happen if both filaments of one lamp failed he explained thusly:

"Because of the varied amount of use given either dim or bright lights there usually is a margin of 500 operating hours between the filaments. Naturally, however, the driver should have a defective lamp replaced soon after it fails. A combination of one bright and one dim lamp does not confuse an approaching driver as much as just one light, but consistency is best."

Sorosis Members Hear Talk on Hymns, Songs

Hostess to the Mansfield Sorosis club at the Women's club recently was Mrs. H. L. Creveling. During the business meeting plans were made to send gifts to Friendly House settlement for Christmas. Subject of a talk by Mrs. Ambrose Middleton was "Possible Future for Safety Laws and the Influence Club Women Can Have."

Mrs. E. D. Gibson had charge of the program on "Hymns and Patriotic Songs." She told about many of the early songs and revealed that a great number of them had come from Scotland and England. The "Ainsworth Psalter" was the only book of songs brought over by the Pilgrims. The speaker told of the work of the first colony hymn writer, William Billings, of Boston. She said that the first native songs were written at the beginning of the Revolutionary war. These songs were found to have much power to sway feelings of the people.

Second period of hymn and song writing, Mrs. Gibson said, came through the Negroes at the time of slavery. Their songs were a cry of the people telling their needs. Post-war hymns originated from personal rather than national inspiration, she added. Some songs have spirituals stimulus simular to that of Bible passages. As outstanding American songs, Mrs. Gibson named "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "Tenting Tonight," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Pack Up Your Troubles." The speaker listed as "greatest" of the patriotic songs, "Star Spangled Banner," "America," and "America the Beautiful." Patriotic quotations were used as roll call response. On Dec. 9, the club will meet with Miss Grace Courtney.

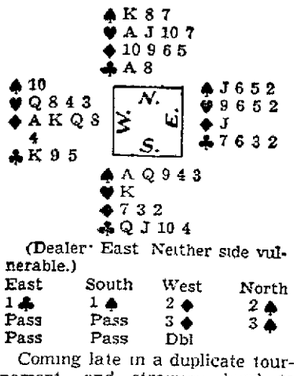
WATCH FOR PSYCHIC BIDS

Always be alert to spot a psychic bid. Don't trust your opponets to bid soundly all of the time, even if they are people who never before were known to make a psychic. More important still, don't count infallibly on your partner to have all of the strength his bids seem to indicate. Though he be ordinarily the most accurate and conservative bidder you ever saw, one who registers horror whenever somebody else makes a psychic bid, you still can't be quite certain of him. The very next bid he makes may be the first psychic of his entire life.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	3 ♦	3 ♠
Pass	Pass	Dbl

Coming late in a duplicate tournament, and straining hard to gain an extra top score or two, East had really won it with his psychic bid, but West's lack of acumen threw the victory away. Note that South had passed the hand out at 2-Spades, if West only had passed too. Then notice how once again South had passed it out at 3-Spades. If West had passed then, the tournament would have been won, because a bunch of other pairs got into the North-South game which was in the cards.

West's double of the 3-Spades, however, threw his pair into a cold bottom score. South rattled off the remaining ten tricks with the same great ease as the young man on the flying trapeze, after West took three diamond tricks That gave North-South 180 for the doubled three tricks which were bid for, plus the 300 premium for game, plus 100 for the doubled extra trick or a grand total of 580. Nobody else scored any more than 420, for an ordinary game.

When East, having opened, later passed North's 2-Spades, West should have begun to be suspicious as that pass was in the face of West's having made a free bid over South's call. His doubts should have been confirmed when East passed a second time, over North's 3-Spades. By a wide stretch of the imagination, you could conceive of East as having had a minimum opening bid and passing to see whether West would rather bid or double. But how likely was that to be the case?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THE GUARD rushed to the basement stairs as soon as my father finished speaking. I shrank back as far as I could against the wall of my cubby hole hiding place, hoping that when he came back he would be as engrossed in his errand as he was now, and would not look in my direction.

Luck was with me, for when he returned he rushed down the stairs as if a savage dog were snapping at his heels, flung the rope on the floor, and with the tear gas bomb held firmly in his hands blurted out his news.

"Those two men got away," he said, "but our car is trailing them."

"You mean," my father said with something ominous in his voice, "that they got away in their car?"

"Oh no, no!" the man answered. "Our boys shot their tires with their silencer guns, nothing to attract anybody's attention, and the men only got the car a half block before they took to their heels. It's a cinch our boys will get them sooner or later."

My father relaxed perceptibly.

"Let us hope they will," he said. "Did you see any sign of the surgeon?"

"No, he hasn't come yet."

"He no doubt will ring the bell when he does get here," my father said,

From one of the guards came a rebellious protest.

"You're never going in there without us, sir," he growled. "We won't have it"

"Why, thank you, Joe," my father said, and his voice showed his gratification, "but I have no intention of going in there. I'm not even going to open the door except the length of this outside chain."

He slipped his hand past the padlockchain, unlocked the door and pulled it ajar, at the same time pressing the light switch. But no sooner had the light streamed out through the crack than there came the sound of shattering glass, and, the light went out again.

"You'll go to hell in a scrap basket if you try to bust in here," a raucous voice yelled. "The first man that comes through that door gets one from my gat. I used one bullet on that light, but I've got plenty more."

To my astonishment my father gave a derisive little laugh, a sound so utterly foreign to him that I hardly could believe my ears. But there was no surprise on the faces of his men, and I reflected that the times when I had seen my father in action of this kind were few in number, and at those times he had been pitted against men of mentality almost as keen as his own, when he would not have used a laugh as a weapon to shake their nerve, knowing that it would be useless.

"That's a good one, men," my father said. "He says he used a bullet on that light. What he used was the heel of his shoe, for it's certain Underwood didn't leave anything in there that he could use for any kind of a blow. And that noise wasn't made by a bullet. He hasn't any, or any gun either."

"Says you!" the man called mockingly, but I thought I detected incipient panic in his voice. "The first man to put his head through that door will find out whether I have a gat or not, but he won't be telling the rest of you about it."

"Nobody's going to put his head through that door," my father said in the patient voice with which he would have explained something elementary to a child. "But you are going to come over to the door and put your hands through it. There's just about room for your hands and wrists. When we have them suitably hand-cuffed, we'll talk about opening the door."

"Oh, you will?" the man said. "Isn't that just lovely? And suppose I don't come up and put my paws into a trap, what then?"

"That will be most unfortunate for you and for your companion," my father said suavely. "We don't want to toss a tear gas bomb in there, but we shall be compelled to do just that, if you do not do what I have just outlined."

NEW DOG TAGS TO GO ON SALE

Canine Owners Must Obtain 1942 Licenses Prior To Jan. 20, Auditor Warns.

Tags for Richland county's dogs will go on sale Monday at the county auditor's office and must be purchased by Jan. 20 to avoid payment of a penalty, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

All dogs three months old or more must have tags. Cost of the 1942 tags will remain the same as this year'e licenses—$1 for male dogs and sterilized females and $3 for females.

The auditor said mail orders for tags will be filled if they are accompanied by check or cash for the proper amount and a complete description of the dog for which the tag is being purchased.

The county has sold 6,225 dog tags this year, providing $7,158 in revenue. Wolfe said all but $6 of that amount has been spent for auditor's clerk hire, applications, tags and supplies, salary of the dog warden, and payment of claims for sheep destroyed by dogs.

There is a balance of $3,640 in the dog tax fund, virtually all of which has accumulated in past years when receipts were considerably in excess of expenses.

LAUSCHE CALLS MEET TO FORCE SPECIAL SESSION ON SURPLUS

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, a Democrat, in a maneuver of possible major importance to Ohio politics, meets with fellow city officials today to formulate plans to force Governor Bricker to convene the legislature in special session to divide the state treasury surplus with local governments.

It was reported the conferees may decide to call a statewide meeting of local officials and issue a mass appeal to the governor for immediate action. Governor Bricker has not replied to an earlier appeal by Lausche in which the mayor charged that the state had "pirated" revenues from the cities but he has decisively rejected other requests.

Lausche estimated the surplus, piled up principally through bumper sales tax collections, at $25,000,000 whereas the Republican state administration set the figure at only about $6,000,000. The governor and his aides have warned of the possibility of a precipitous revenue drop next year.

Irrespective of the merits of the dispute, politicians throughout the state were becoming increasingly aware of its potentialities with relation to the 1942 gubernatorial campaign in which the governor is expected to bid for his third successive term Lausche already has been mentioned as future gubernatorial material on the Democratic side. The meeting today was represented as a non-partisan conference on governmental problems but Democrats felt that for almost the first time since Bricker took office in 1939 he has given them, by his refusal to share the surplus, a first rate political issue.

'Sally Rand' Bit His Ear, He Tells Judge After Crash

ALBANY, Cal. —(INS)— "Sally Rand was biting my ear, WPA was licking my face, and Hedy Lamarr and Clark Gable were having a fight in the back seat."

That was the explanation of Jackie Jackson as to why his auto was involved in a traffic accident.

Police Judge Louis Hardie gulped and suggested that fuller explanations were in order.

Jackson then added that he was a vaudeville entertainer. Sally Rand is his dancing duck, Hedy and Clark are trained pigs, and WPA is a terrier.

Judge Hardie gave himself a week to think things over before pronouncing judgment.

Sees $11,000,000 Boost in Ohio Revenue

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Ohio's 1941 sales tax collections will run about $11,000,000 over original estimates State Treasurer Don H. Ebright said today.

This will bring total collections for the year to a point somewhere between $58,000,000 and $62,000,000, Ebright asserted.

However, the $11,000,000 will not be completely surplus money, Ebright said. Records so far indicate that the 1941 refunds to charitable and other exempt institutions will run more than $1,000,000.

Ebright also said that records of the last five weeks indicate the tax slump next year already has set in, revenues from automobile transactions having fallen about 15 per cent in the last five weeks. There is a corresponding decline in some other lines, he asserted.

U. S. ARMY BANS RIVETED TANKS AS DEATH TRAPS

Orders Welded or Cast Steel Armor Following Tests on Maneuvers.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The U. S. army has stopped placing orders for tanks with riveted armor plate and directed five huge American producers to alter construction plans, because practice tests and actual warfare have shown that the rolling fortresses are virtual deathtraps for men who operate them.

This was disclosed today by a high war department official, who said the new plans will call for all tank construction to be seamed by the welding process, or make use of cast steel armor. The following plants, it was said, are changing, or have changed, production methods to conform:

Chrysler, Detroit; Pressed Steel Car, Chicago; American Locomotive, Schenectady; Baldwin Locomotive, Chester, Pa.; and Pullman Standard Car, Hammond, Ind.

In addition, the new General Motors tank plant at Flint, Mich., will use the new processes.

Thousands of light and medium tanks produced by the riveting method will probably never see actual "blitz" warfare, although officials say that they still will have numerous uses, principally for training.

War department officials have disclosed that the impact of an exploding shell or a direct hit of bullets as small as .50 caliber dislodge the rivits and send them ricocheting inside the tank, imperiling the lives of those operating the weapons. This was discovered by tests on this side of the water and by the British in actual combat abroad.

A warning that this would happen was made by a high government official — since resigned — seven months ago. Time has borne him out. As long ago as April 8, A. R. Clancy, then chief of the OPM ordnance section, told of the danger of possible dislodged rivets to crews.

Rivets were used at first, it was explained, because of the desperate need for quick production. Outstanding orders for tanks with riveted plates will be allowed to stand because, it was said, riveted tanks are better than none at all. Hundreds are still on order, but these orders cannot be stopped without bringing all tank production to a virtual standstill.

RELIEF CASES NEAR MINIMUM

42,000 Reported In Ohio In October; Spot Check of Employables Planned.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said today that the number of relief cases in the state was near "the irreducible minimum" and that as a result a "spot-check" would be made of the relief load in order to determine if anyone on relief might be available for limited employment.

"Since our case load is so near the irreducible minimum only a small percentage of the persons receiving relief are employable at all," Sherwood said. "However there are a number on the rolls who would be able to do limited amounts of work if they were medically or vocationally rehabilitated."

He said the "spot-check" will collect information as to the age, race, handicaps and other factors which might affect the employment status of those on relief. The survey will enable welfare authorities to determine what medical and vocational rehabilitation programs might be set up to aid potentially employable recipients of relief

The welfare director said that during October the number of relief cases in the state dropped to 42,188, the lowest number of cases on record since 1933 when comparable statistics first were made available. He said that the "irreducible minimum" number of relief cases probably would be about 40,000 cases.

The survey of relief rolls will be begun Dec. 1 in each of the 153 local relief areas and will be carried out by local relief directors.

POLITICAL POT SIMMERS, GOP BOOMS BRICKER FOR THIRD TERM

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD—Opening of a third-term boom for Gov. John W Bricker set the Ohio political pot lid to jiggling today over an early head of steam.

Seventh district Republican leaders, indorsing Bricker to be only member of their party except Rutherford B Hayes, to hold the governorship three times reported that Bricker's secretary, Don Power, had disclosed his chief's candidacy.

Neither Bricker nor Power was available for comment, both being reported "out of town" at Columbus.

Last night's meeting of district party chairmen and secretaries from nine counties also indorsed for re-election next year Congressman Clarence J Brown of Blanchester, Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Atty. Gen Thomas J. Herbert, State Central Committeeman Charles J Wagoner of Lebanon and State Central Committeewoman Margaret Baker of Springfield.

Although the Bricker indorsement was unanimous, the delegates from Champaign and Logan counties balked at supporting the other state candidates after declaring the meeting was "a rubber stamp" and that leaders were "cramming the indorsements down our throats."

Bricker polled 1,265,548 votes to 1,147,323 for Democrat Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati in 1938 after Sawyer had eliminated Gov Martin L. Davey in the primaries

Running on a program combining claims of economy in state government and opposition to extension of federal power over the states, Bricker ran up a 1,825,312 to 1,460,653 vote over Davey in 1940 when the latter attempted a comeback.

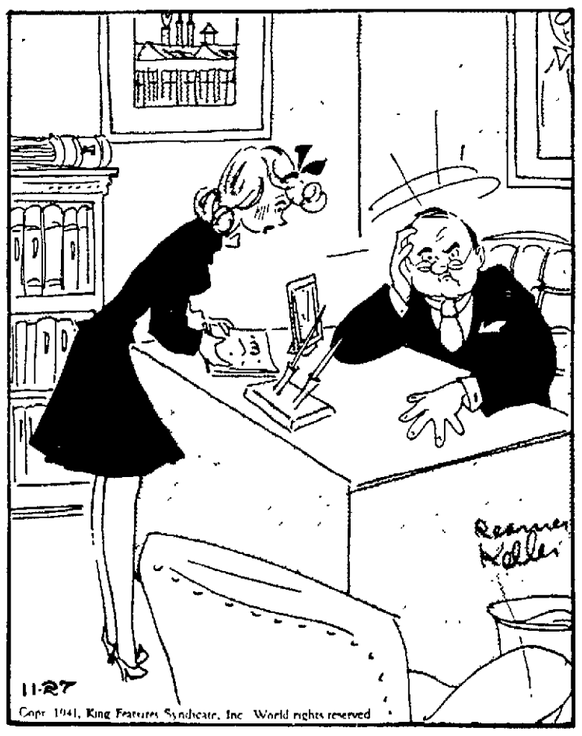
HOME FOR YULE

Men Not Called to Army by Dec. 10 Get Holiday 'Reprieve.'

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Selective service registrants in Ohio who have not been drafted by Dec. 10 may go ahead with plans to be home on Christmas.

Major Carl G. Wahl said today no draftees will be called up between Dec. 10 and Jan. 1. Physical examinations will continue until the day before Christmas, however.

Laff-a-Day



"You only asked me if I could write short-hand—not if I could read it!"

Up and Down THE STREET

The recently organized Red Cross women's motor corps is getting a work-out distributing Red Cross posters to firms subscribing 100 per cent to Roll Call. The 16 members, among them teachers, office workers and housewives, have each given time to delivering the posters, with the teachers and office workers serving after working hours. Corps members are now attending weekly first aid training classes and after the holidays will branch off into the required garage mechanic course to be held at Mansfield Senior high school.

At least one client in the Farmers Bank building believes in the power of the printed word. Windows in the building are washed regularly but one fifth floor occupant evidently thought he was slighted. After being passed up several days in succession, he traced in the dirt on the window this pleading note: "Wash Me!"

* * *

Defense-minded Mansfielders have been encouraged to buy their defense bonds and savings stamps at the postoffice at a postal window especially decorated and set aside for that purpose. The window next to that used for money orders has been placarded and framed with red, white and blue trimming, and labeled as the "defense window," by Assistant Postmaster W. T. Houston.

* * *

Clerks of Richland county's draft boards are beginning to wonder if they wouldn't have more men in the army now if all their registrants had been examined in Columbus under the centralized plan. The new plan was placed in operation only last week and already reports show that a much higher percentage of Richland countians are being approved for service than when the registrants were examined at the Mansfield Armory. Board 1 in Mansfield which sent 93 men to Columbus Tuesday for examinations received approval today of 60 of them while 12 more were returned here for further examination. Some of the 12 probably will be added to the approved list.

SAY THEY SHOT MAN DURING ROBBERY TRY

Traced To Rooming House Pair Tells of Struggle, Flight In Victim's Auto.

(By United Press)

CUMBERLAND, Ky. — Two youths confessed today, police said, that they shot Ward Loveless, wealthy Washington attorney, while attempting to rob him at his fashionable estate near Leesburg, Va., last Sunday.

Loveless, 51, was found dead at his home Monday morning.

The youths, Paul Hoback, 16, Bluefield, W. Va., and Thomas Peters, 16, Norfolk, Va, were captured about 5 a. m. at Appalachia, Va., 12 miles east of here, after a car taken from the Loveless estate was found in Cumberland.

Officers Jimmie Johnson, James Hogg and Roy Barnes of the Cumberland police force seized the youths in an Appalachian rooming house after a four-hour search.

Johnson said the youths admitted shooting Loveless when he resisted their robbery demands.

"They said they wanted to rob him because he was the richest man in the community and made about $600 an hour," Johnson said.

The youths climbed through a window of the manor house Sunday night and waited for Loveless, police said When the attorney returned, they pointed their guns at him and told him to raise his hands.

Instead Loveless attacked the two youths and grappled for the gun in Hoback's hand Hoback said he received a minor flesh wound when the gun discharged and a bullet nipped his ear.

Hoback said he called to Peters to hit Loveless over the head but that Peters fired at Loveless. Hoback ran into the next room, threw a vase back at Loveless and started up a stairway. Loveless caught him again, but fell back when Hoback kicked.

Then Loveless stopped fighting, Hoback told police, and asked the youths what they wanted. He gave them an empty bill fold and his car keys, they said, and the youths forced him into a closet.

They fled in Loveless' green coupe.

Police learned about midnight that a taxicab driver had taken the boys to Appalachia from a relative's home in Cumberland. The three officers were sent to the Virginia town and found the youths in a rooming house.

Police filed no formal charges against them but held them awaiting the arrival of Virginia authorities.

Oklahoma Man Gets Patent on 'V for Victory'

TULSA Okla — (AP) — Pratho P. Scott didn't think up the V-for-Victory emblem, but he had a better idea. He got a patent on it, and now he stands to make a fortune from its commercial use.

The V has been widely employed, as in jewelry and clothing designs, but strangely enough nobody ever took the trouble to safeguard it with a patent.

That clever little brain child was reserved for Scotty and now it seems that all the commercial organizations utilizing the patriotic symbol of a battle-torn Britain may have to pay royalties to him.

Scott, genial, hustling sales manager for a Tulsa boat company, got his bright idea recently when he designed a V-forVictory boat pennant for a customer. Inside the V appeared the well-known three dots and a dash, Morse code for V.

The customer rejected the drawing but it got Scott to thinking. He employed a patent attorney, advanced the necessary $150 patent fees, and sat back to see what would happen.

Plenty happened, and so quickly it made Scotty's head swim. No sooner had a patent been issued him than a dozen firms offered to negotiate with him for exclusive rights.

"Who'd think," the amazed Scotty demanded, "that anything as well known as that had not been patented?"

Mansfield may lay claim to a unique position on the diamond today.

The Mansfield Braves have the smallest reserve list of any team in organized baseball, holding strings on only four players, Manager Alex Clowson, Bill Reinka, Dick Morse and Harry Siegbert.

The short list results from the return to Flint of Pitcher Bob Kuzava, and the sale of nine other players at the close of last season.

I had been under the impression that Gral Moore, third baseman and outfielder, still belonged to the Braves, and just now I discover that he was released in midseason.

You'll recall that Moore was out of action with a knee injury for a long time, and then returned to play in one or two games. But the knee failed to hold up, and he was cut loose to make room for Kuzava. Then, when Rudy Oklesson was sold to Flint, the Braves staggered down the stretch one under the player limit.

Minor league reserve lists in this week's Sporting News show that 41 minor circuits retained strings on 4,348 for 1942. But Uncle Sam and the draft will pull a lot of those strings before 1942 rolls around, to spring training season.

The reserve list shows the Ohio State league retains strings on seven umpires: Glenn Bendigo, Ralph Bulmon, Don Karns Tom Kreger, Dewey Stover, L. H. Swisher and Bill Ward.

I'm surprised that Ward's name is on the list. Bill was fired late in the season for running out on an umpiring assignment, and the last time I talked to Joe Donnelly, league prexy, Joe was very vehement in saying he'd never help Ward get another job. And since he was fired, how is he retained on the reserve list?

* * *

Every Ohio State league team with the exception of Mansfield has a full reserve list left from the '41 campaign.

League champion Fremont lists only seven players, but Findlay has strings on 17, and Tiffin and Fostoria each reserves 15. Lima has 11 players on the list.

So IF the Ohio State league operates again next year, there'll be a lot of familiar faces returning to the circuit's ball parks.

* * *

Will Mansfield have a team? And will it have a full park? These are questions I don't know any more about than you do. And neither, so I suspect, does the Mansfield management, up until now. President George Satterlee expects to have a conference with President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians on the subject next week.

County Cage Play Starts

Five Games Scheduled For Teams Tomorrow.

Just two games old, the 1941-42 Richland county basketball season will take its first real step tomorrow as five county games are slated for play.

Feature attraction will be the appearance at Madison of Lexington. So far the Minute Men have dropped one game to Chesterville while Madison's highly favored Rams have played no games.

In other county games Bellville moves to Ontario, Shiloh to Greenwich, and the faculty is slated to play the Butler team. The first time the faculty encountered the Butlerites they swamped their pupils with ease.

Last night Madison started public appearances of its team with a basketball clinic demonstrating old and new ways of playing the game. Held in order to observe the 50th anniversary of the founding of the game, the demonstration displayed players working under all rule and floor conditions down to the present day.

In tomorrow's game Madison will be able to draw on the services of five lettermen while Lexington will have but one letterman in Bill Ritchie. However there will be Lexington players who have had floor experience in Ray Clever, Dwight Rinehart, Bob Snyder, Bob Wade, Willard Follett and Max Taylor.

Ontario, playing under Coach Orville Kibler, will take three lettermen to Bellville. These are Bill Gerberick, Jack Elliott and Junior Boleratz.

* * *

Bellville on the other hand presents one of the darkest pregame pictures in the county with not a single returning veteran. Players with some experience who will probably see some play are Martin Hamilton, William Livingston and George Stoolt.

* * *

Shiloh, which won three games last year, is going to attempt to better the record this year Starting with a new coach and two lettermen, the Drummer Boys will tee off on Greenwich.

New coach is Charles Steidle from Elwood, Ind., the birthplace of Wendell Willkie and the home state of big time basketball.

Junior James and Clyde are the two lettermen and Steidle plans to find players for the other positions among George Adams, Bob Hammond, Eugene Russell and Earl Stiblings.

North Fairfield will play Plymouth to round out the day's play in a Twin Valley league game.

Zale Tapers Off Training

Champ Ready To Meet Abrams For Crown.

NEW YORK (NS)—Light limbering up exercises were scheduled today and after that the battle tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden for Tony Zale Notre Dame Boxing association middleweight champion and George Abrams "unknowned king" who will clash for undisputed possession of the crown.

Zale, a native of Gary, Ind., wound up his training yesterday for the 15-round encounter with the sailor from the U. S. Navy, who concluded his heavy work on Tuesday.

By virtue of their victories over Billy Soose former middleweight and his cagy performances here in the past, Abrams has been established as a slight favorite to lift Zale's crown and thus gain general recognition as the 160 pound ruler the first since the reign of Freddie Steele.

Whippets Have Four Veterans

SHELBY—Coach William Query has to build up the Whippet cage team from four veterans who returned from the varsity squad last year.

The four included among the 50 basketball candidates out here are Forwards Dave Clark and Dave Lewis and Guards Junior Keiser and Bob Lauhie. It is the third year that Clark and Keiser have been on the varsity.

The quad has been practicing passing and dribbling this week. The first game is scheduled at Crestline on Dec. 5. It is not a North Central Ohio league contest.

BILL DUDLEY

Meet Bill Dudley, youngest college football captain in America, who wound up his collegiate career at the University of Virginia by scoring 22 points to give him a total of 131 points for the season and considerable recognition for the All-American teams. Dudley, said to be the finest football player in University of Virginia history, has been a star for three years. Only 19, Dudley was rated the season's No. 2 back in 1940 by the statistical bureau. This year he has gained 2,167 yards and has a ballcarrying average of six yards a crack.

Johnny Perrine showed the way to Westinghouse "A" league bowlers last night with a 581 total on games of 207-172-202 at Colony alleys.

C. Dawson rolled high game of 231, and P. Benedict had a 223 game.

Reds Indicate They're Alive

Folio Hints Cincy's In Market For Few Trades.

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI (NS)—A neat little folio strangely suggestive of a public sale handbill has just come off the presses to indicate that the Cincinnati Reds are going to the winter baseball meetings with their trading pants on.

It is entitled "player roster and training schedule December meeting edition." Like the handbills enumerating the items of personal property livestock, farm machinery, and miscellaneous articles too numerous to mention, to go on sale at 10 a. m. Monday on the Jos. Frayedwhisker farm, with lunch to be served by the Needlepoint ladies, it is complete.

Every player, from veteran ace Paul Derringer to hopeful George Burpo, is listed, with every pertinent detail of his baseball pedigree The earned-run averages of seven of the pitchers are even figured to three decimal places.

* *

It devotes two thirds of one page is devoted to figures on the distances from the home plates to the outfield walls of all the players' home parks last season. That includes even Tucson out in the Arizona-Texas league, with a centerfield wall 520 feet from where the bat and ball meet.

What makes it slightly significant is this paragraph of explanation:

This first edition of the Reds' 1942 roster is prepared especially for news gatherers who have an interest in the December baseball confab edition will be ready for distribution about January 26 1942.

Then it gives the exact location of the Cincinnati headquarters in Jacksonville for the minor league fall meetings. Second and more meetings next week and in Chicago for the major league sessions the following week.

Briefly "this is what we have for you news gatherers to keep track of this is where we'll be, and have you heard of any good offers?"

RECORD SET

CHICAGO (NS)—For the second year in a row, football fans set an all-time attendance record in the western conference, statistics showed today. Forty-nine Big Ten games attracted a total of 1,811,388 persons this fall compared to the 1,799,898 who watched the conference schools perform a year ago. The previous attendance record had been established in 1927.

Winters Tells Rules Changes

Conducts Clinic For 35 Downtown Coaches.

Basketball rules clinic staged last night at the high school gym by Jay Winters of Bucyrus for Mansfield's Downtown Coaches was attended by 35 fans and several visiting coaches, including Merle Hutson of Crestline and Orville Kibler of Ontario.

* * *

Plans were announced for a joint meeting next Wednesday night of the Downtown Coaches and Madison high school Boosters club, at which time the Mansfield Tygers and Madison Rams will put on an offensive and defensive demonstration.

Most important of the rule changes is the one that cancels the 3-second rule between the foul line and mid-floor, but retains the rule for the remainder of the key-hole into the basket.

Rule-makers, seeing that opening of the foul circle beyond the free-throw line would bring back the pivot play, have decreed that daylight must be showing between the pivot man and his guard. So there will be a lot of fouls called on the play, both of charging and blocking.

* * *

Another important rule change is the one that permits substitution after the scoring of a basket, which often will interfer with a team's plans for a fast breaking offensive.

* * *

The rules this year also make the officials' time out in the fourth quarter compulsory, and provide for a complete sudden death system in overtime play. The first team to score two points after the regulation time is declared winner. If each team scores a point in the first overtime, the first to score one point in the second extra session wins.

Fan-shaped back-boards are declared legal this year, but teams using them must notify their opponents ahead of time.

'A' Leaguers Cooled Off

High-Scoring Keglers Drop To Five 600's.

Commercial "A" league keglers have finally cooled off. Orlie Grable's 617 total was high enough for top honors in the league last night at Colony alleys, and was one of only five 600 series in the league.

Bill Fenn rolled 612, Bill Donnellan 610, Willis 609, and Art Hilborn 601. Hilborn's 248 was high game, while Bissman Birdie Brands turned in a 994 game, and Goebel Beers 991.

Team Entries Must Be Filed By Monday Night.

The final deadline for entries in the YMCA Senior and Junior Church basketball leagues has been set for Monday night, according to D. S. Murray, chairman of the basketball committee.

All teams are requested to get their eligibility list in before that time. Managers of all teams must remember that all players must sign their individual lists, according to Murray.

* * *

The opening date for the leagues has not been set but will depend on the number of teams that are entered in each league.

* * *

The First Baptist, First Lutheran, First Congregational are sure entries in the Senior league with the possibilities of St. Lukes, and Grace Episcopal entering teams in this league. Just what teams will enter the Saturday afternoon, junior loop is still indefinite however St. Matthews and First Lutheran have signified their intentions of entering this league.

All entry blanks should be given to Donald D. Cram, secretary of the Commission at the YMCA before Monday evening. Entry blanks can still be secured for teams who have not secured their blanks to date.

Age No Baseball Factor

60 and 24-Year-Olds Named Squad Managers.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Within a day of each other a 24-year-old youngster and a 60-year-old veteran have been made managers of major league baseball clubs proving that whatever other qualifications may be necessary, age is no factor.

The Phillies picked genial old John Bernard (Hans) Lobert yesterday to run their ball club less than 24 hours after the Cleveland Indians named Lou Boudreau, who was not born until 14 years after Lobert made his major league debut with Pittsburgh.

The selection of Lobert was no surprise to anyone because he ran the National league's rear guard for a few weeks last season while Doc Prothro was out beating the bushes for talent and during those weeks the Phillies played their best ball.

Cleveland's choice of Boudreau, on the other hand, was a jolt to most people. He has played in only 357 major league games, the equivalent of 2½ seasons and been in baseball just three years.

He has proved himself a fine player, one of the best shortstops in the majors, and a diplomat well liked by his teammates. They can be expected to play ball for him. He took no part, at least actively, in the rebellion against Oscar Vitt two years ago and was friendly with Weatherly, the temperamental outfielder who was in several jams with Manager Roger Peckinpaugh last summer.

* * *

Yet with the exception of Bob Feller, Boudreau is the youngest regular on the club and it is expecting a lot of him to step into the uneasy driver's seat at Cleveland and tell veterans like Rollie Hemsley or Hal Trosky or Gerald Walker what they shall and shall not do.

However, the point about which other baseball executives have expressed the most concern privately is what the responsibility of the managership will do to Boudreau as a player. He had his own troubles last season, batting .258 and letting his runs batted in total drop from 101 to 55.

Two boy managers. Bucky Harris and Joe Cronin, were successful at Washington where Clark (Old Fox) Griffith kept his crafty hands on everything and the best guess is that Peckinpaugh will continue to exert a close advisory rule over the running of the Indians.

TEXAS A. & M. LAYS RECORD ON THE LINE

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. —(AP)— Mighty Texas A. and M. laid one of college football's greatest records on the line today in the forty-eighth renewal of the southwest's oldest and bitterest feud.

A university of Texas team, whose championship hopes crashed ten days ago but which was determined to snatch the greatest victory of them all, rolls against the undefeated, untied Cadets before a crowd of 38,200—the second largest in the history of the annual classic.

OHIO HUNTERS GET TWO-IN-ONE SHOTS

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)—When it comes to killing two birds with one shot Ohio's hunters are pretty good.

Riggs Turns Tennis Pro

2 Amateur Thrones Left Vacant Within 24 Hours.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two amateur tennis thrones of the United States stood empty today after the abdication of both the outdoor and indoor rulers to search for the gold that lies in the trail of the touring professionals.

National Outdoor Champion Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs, the court jester who wore the indoor crown, switched from amateur to pros less than 24 hours after Kovacs was suspended on a charge of trying to mix the two.

Now the United States Lawn Tennis association, which accused Kovacs of having more than one tennis racket, faces 1942 with the problem of staging both its major amateur tournaments without a defending champion in the men's division.

* * *

Riggs, who signed his professional contract here, was asked what he thought the reaction of the U. S. L. T. A. would be. "They probably will feel that it's a good riddance," said Riggs. "they're getting rid of a couple of headaches."

At his home in Oakland, Cal., Kovacs predicted that amateur tennis would be "all washed up," and added, "without me, they won't have any gate attraction."

* * *

"I was sick and tired of taking orders from the brass hats," said Frank, never one to be bashful. "They'll have to get off the gravy train now." Actually, Kovacs said, he came out $2.35 in the hole on his expenses this year.

* * *

Kovacs and Riggs signed contracts with Alexis Thompson, owner of the Philadelphia professional football club, for a series of matches with Fred Perry and Don Budge, who joined the pro ranks several years ago.

Army-Navy Game Tops Grid Card For Saturday

Army backs, left to right, Ralph Hill, Hersch Jarrell, Johnny Hatch and Hank Mazur

Meeting of Army and Navy in Philadelphia tops the last big football card this week. Navy, beaten only by Notre Dame, and Army, defeated by Harvard and Pennsylvania, have outstanding football teams this year and while Navy will go into the game a slight favorite, it should be another close one. Army tied Notre Dame for its high spot of the season. Other games of interest this Saturday are Vanderbilt and Tennessee, Stanford and California and Mississippi and Mississippi State.

PICKED BY ILLINI

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —(INS)— Jimmy Smith, one of the Big Ten's best running halfbacks, today held election as captain of the Illinois 1942 football team. Nate Johnson, tackle, was selected by his teammates as their most valuable player during 1941.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(By Special News Service)

NEW YORK—Now that Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs have joined the tennis pros, the racquet rulers should wake up and recognize the facts. . . . We mean open tournaments openly arrived at . . . A boy can't keep going long on the pickings as a tennis bum and it will take better drawing cards than Bobby and Frank to make money barnstorming. . . . Only solution is to build up a profitable tournament circuit that would enable the stars to make money and let the kids develop as amateurs. . . . For the Army-Navy game Saturday, the Philadelphia transportation company plans to use 160 street cars, 225 buses and 1,100 employes to move the crowd to and from the Municipal stadium . . . Abe Green, N. B. A. president, is plugging for a rule requiring fight managers to pass an examination on their fitness to teach and handle fighters.

QUOTE, UNQUOTE.

Mal Stevens (N. Y. U. coach): "I'd like nothing better than to hire the Giants and go run Fordham out of the stadium Saturday, but that isn't the university's policy."

Johnny Ogden (owner of the Elmira, N. Y., ball club): "Because of the draft and defense boom, ball players are going to be scarce this year—and hard to get."

SERVICE DEPT.

Welterweight Champ Red Cochrane says life in the navy is well and he hasn't met a man at the Newport (R. I.) base who doesn't like it there. . . . Football affairs are getting slightly confused around Fort Knox (Ky.). . . . Fort Thomas (Ky.) beat Fort Hayes (O.) there the other day to win the Fifth Corps area touch football championship. Next Sunday the regular gridders will be the "home" team when they go to Louisville to play the city's independent league champs.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Billy Kelly, Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier and Express: "Jimmy Johnston says it will take a fighter with the skill of Jim Corbett, the punch of Bob Fitzsimmons and the aggressiveness of Jack Dempsey to defeat Joe Louis. Still, he wants to stick Bob Pastor in with Joe for his third licking."

HOT STOVE WARMUP.

According to current reports, the Yanks are offering Washington big money for First-Baseman Mickey Vernon. Another story is that the Tigers already have tried to trade Rudy York, Frank Crocher and Pinky Higgins to the Browns for George McQuinn. Harlond Clift and Johnny Berardino—and were turned down.

Vander Meer Sure He'll Retain Job

NEW YORK —(AP)— Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vander Meer, whose comeback last season was the talk of baseball, is confident he will be back with the Cincinnati Reds next year.

* * *

Returning home at Midland, N. J., from a hunting trip to attend a friend's wedding, Johnny said:

* * *

"At present I am the only left-handed pitcher on the Cincinnati roster and I'm certain they would not sell or trade me unless they had another left-hander capable on taking a starting assignment."

MOST VALUABLE

IOWA CITY —(INS)— Bill Diehl, captain of the Iowa Hawkeyes and "60 minute" center, today was the choice of his teammates as their most valuable player.

Xavier Studies Offer of Game

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Unless Xavier decides on a post season game "somewhere in the east" as coach Clem Crowe indicated at a varsity association luncheon yesterday, Ohio's football season ends Saturday when Xavier entertains Georgetown.

* * *

Crows said negotiations were under way for a post-season contest of some sort but declined to elaborate.

* * *

Meantime, he continued to drill the Musketeers on offense, fearful of the big Georgetown line which has piled up an imposing defensive record.

Mansfielder Wins Letter at Kenyon

GAMBIER- Frederick Weaver, 31 Sherman avenue, Mansfield, Ohio was among the eighteen men receiving a varsity football letter at a banquet given by Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers, president of Kenyon college. Kenyon finished their football season with five wins and two losses, the best record they have had in the last fifteen years of football at Kenyon.

With all but two regulars returning next year and an outstanding group of freshmen, prospects for football at Kenyon look very bright for next year.

M'AFEE RANKS TOPS IN DEFENSIVE ROLE ALSO

CHICAGO —(AP)— George McAfee, the Chicago Bears' No. 1 offensive threat in the National Pro Football league, now bobs up in a defensive role.

Statistics on defense released today showed McAfee with six pass interceptions which tied him for top honors in this department which Marshall Goldberg of the Chicago Cardinals and Art Jones of Pittsburgh

Ohioans On Outstate Teams Would Make Powerful Club

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A formidable football powerhouse could be constructed from Ohio players who displayed their talents during the past season at widely scattered colleges outside the Buckeye state.

Sparkplug of the "dream team" backfield probably would be Georgia's No. 1 backfield ace and top candidate for all-American recognition, Frankie (Iron Jaw) Sinkwich of Youngstown.

For running mates, Sinkwich could have Bob Glass of Tulane, a product of Paul Brown's Massillon high school elevens; Norm Michael of Syracuse, a Cleveland boy, and Ken Stofer, Lakewood lad who will captain the 1942 Cornell squad.

Don Snavely, another Massillon product who appeared en route to an all-American berth at Columbia before an injury took him out of action, would get first call at center.

* * *

Ralph Fife of Canton, Pittsburgh's brilliant guard who is rated by many scouts as the season's best line-backer, would shine on any team. Fife already has been named on the 1941 all-opponent elevens picked by players of Duke, Minnesota and Michigan.

Bob Kolesar of Michigan, who hails from Cleveland, could handle the other guard post.

The tackle positions would be a toss-up between Jim Britz of Notre Dame (Niles), Len Simonette of Tennessee (New Philadelphia) and Dick White of North Carolina (Cleveland).

Bob Dove of Youngstown, Notre Dame's ace flanker, Jim Smith of Hamilton, Duke end, or Earl Hamilton of Bexley, Colgate end, likely could handle the wing assignments.

Capable reserves for the mythical eleven might include:

Backs—Jim Deal of Cleveland (Rice), Harold Lockard of Cleveland (Michigan), Norm Call of Cleveland (Michigan), Art Ashbaugh of Youngstown (Notre Dame), Creighton and Tom Miller of Cleveland (Notre Dame), Joe Prokop of Cleveland (Notre Dame), Bill Zimmerman of Massillon (Tennessee), Dale Bartholomew of Warren (Dartmouth), John Roberts of Marion, Dartmouth), Paul Rose of Cleveland (Springfield, Mass.) Vincent Snyder of Massillon (Purdue), and Howard Brown of Dayton (Indiana).

Center—Jack Tavener of Granville (Indiana).

Guards—Bob McBride of Logan (Notre Dame), Del Dickerhoof of Bellaire (Iowa), Jim Miller of Massillon (Purdue), Wesley Stevens of Cleveland (Purdue), Charles Ehrlich of Amherst (Purdue), Al Bragalone of Campbell (Indiana), Lou Anderson of Massillon (Dartmouth) and Bill Marion of Hamilton (guard).

Ends—Phil Sharpe of Cleveland (Michigan), Bob Tresch of Cleveland (Rice), Bill Smyth of Cincinnati (Notre Dame), Al and Emil Hust of Cleveland (Tennessee), Hamilton Davis of Cleveland (Colgate) and Ted Hasapes of Campbell (Indiana).

POWER BATTLE IN SOUTHWEST LIKE TVA ROW

Issue Projected Between Utility and Federal Electrification.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(U.P.)—A battle for electric power that promises to be on a scale comparable to the TVA controversy is in the making in the Southwest.

After a brief flare-up into the public print, the battle has been and was today being fought behind the scenes. The principal antagonists in this affray are J. B. Thomas, president of the Texas Electric Service company in Fort Worth, and Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco, champion of the Rural Electrification program.

The fight started over electric power soon to hum from the dynamos at Possum Kingdom Dam across the Brazos river, 65 miles west of here, and may spread over half-a-dozen Southewestern states and involve many more personalities before the power-battle has been won.

Rural electrification proponents envision an enormous power grid system spreading throughout Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Kansas. The Brazos river project at Possum Kingdom was the second completed, and the huge Denison Dam across the Red river already is well along toward completion.

Dams are producing power on the Colorado river. Other dams and power plants are planned for the Arkansas river, Red river, Brazos river, and the Colorado river. The next project may be a dam thrown across the Brazos at Whitney, Tex.

When all of these have been completed they will be inter-connected, forming the largest power grid in the world. Engineers predict the Arkansas river projects alone will produce more power than the TVA.

The utility companies lost the first round to a group of sun and wind-hardened farmers. When the last gaps in Possum Kingdom Dam were closed, Texas Electric Service company offered to buy the power under the following provisions:

1—A $306,000 average annual payment to the district.

2—Agreement to serve competing municipal plants at Seymour and Weatherford (small towns near Fort Worth) at a low rate.

3—To sell power to 20 local REA co-operatives at 7.2 mills or less than ¾ per kilowatt hour.

4—District to have right to recapture from company.

5—Company to build at its own expense necessary step-up transformer station and transmission line connection.

Here's Advice On How To Live In Bed and Like It

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, PALO ALTO, Cal.—(INS)—How to live in bed and like it was described in detail to the American Psysiotherapy Association Convention by Miss Helen Kaiser, of Mt. Sinai hospital, Cleveland, O., and past president of the organization.

Everybody, with few exceptions, does the reasonable thing when they feel ill and promptly go to bed, she said, but from there on most patients seem to do everything wrong.

For sick abeds, Miss Kaiser suggested the following rules:

1. Use a small, meagrely-stuffed pillow. A billowy pillow or utilization of more than one pillow cranes the head into an unnatural position and tends to result in a stiff neck.
2. Bulwark your legs with pillows or sandbags to keep the knees straight and in a normal position.
3. Put pillows under the calves of the legs to keep the heels from chafing against the sheet.
4. Place a box below the soles of the feet, for them to "stand on." This keeps the blankets off the feet and allows the feet to point straight up.
5. Use pillows by the side to brace the forearms.
6. Lie as straight as possible, in order to prevent undue weight being placed on the hips.

New Instrument Predicts Hour Fog Will Lift

PASADENA, Cal.—(INS)—Considerable military value is attached to a newly-invented instrument with which it is possible accurately to predict the hour at which fog and cloud banks will lift.

The instrument, which looks somewhat like a portable radio, was invented by Newton C. Stone, meteorologist at the California Institute of Technology.

Until now, about the best forecasters have been able to do is to predict within an hour or two the time when murky weather would clear away, but with his device, Stone is able to forecast the return of normal visibility almost to the minute.

It is said of the invention that it will be of considerable help to naval and air forces in planning operations in foggy weather.

The instrument measures the amount of light reaching the earth through clouds or fog. From this Stone has worked out a method of calculating how long it will take the clouds or fog to be dissipated.

Sugar Loaf mountain, near Rio de Janeiro, is some fifty feet higher than the Empire State building.

Pastors, Heads of Women's Groups To See New Movie

Mansfield ministers and heads of women's organizations will be guests of the Ohio theater management at a private showing of the picture, "One Foot in Heaven," Friday at 10:30 a. m.

The production, based on Hartzell Spence's novel by the same name, tells the story of a practical minister and his family in the early part of the century.

Spence's own family are the characters in the real-life story and they are brought to the screen by a notable cast headed by Fredric March and Martha Scott.

One of Los Angeles most beautiful churches, the Wilshire Methodist, co-operated in making the picture by permitting scenes to be filmed within its walls while a New York minister, Dr. Norman Vincent Peal, acted as technical advisor.

The picture opens a four-day engagement at the Ohio Saturday.

Dr. Vern O. Knudsen, acoustics expert at the University of California, believes that the noise of tanks and high-powered airplanes, if long endured, will interfere with physiological functions.

TROOP CONVOY GOES THROUGH CITY, COUNTY

130 Soldiers, 28 Trucks Pass Through Mansfield; Stay Over Night In Bucyrus.

A convoy of approximately 130 soldiers, special troops from the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground, went through Mansfield yesterday at 3 p. m., enroute to a new station in the midwest.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, announced that he had been contacted by Second Lieut. Paul Green, convoy commander, several days ago to make arrangements for the troops to stop here over night.

Routzon received word yesterday, however, that the troops would be quartered over night at Bucyrus and would only pass through Mansfield.

Included in the convoy were 28 Army trucks ranging from a half to one and a half tons each and eight civilian cars. An advance detail arrived in the city earlier in the afternoon to contact Mansfield police for convoy duty.

The special troops were members of the 38th Ordnance company and have been stationed at the Aberdeen proving ground for training.

Lieut. Green did not announce where the troops were being transferred.

COLLECTOR HAS 6,500 SPECIMENS

BETHEL, Me.—(U.P.)—Leston Ansel Wheeler glories in the name "Wildflower Man."

For 40 years Wheeler has been collecting wildflowers and plants in the Pine Tree state and now has a complete collection of all Maine's 372 wildflowers.

During his collecting, Wheeler has gathered flowers in other states so that he now has a total collection of 6,500 specimens neatly mounted in his collection.

YOUNG, AUTHOR AND LECTURER, TO APPEAR IN MANSFIELD DEC. 8

Under sponsorship of the University club, James R. Young, author and lecturer on the Orient, will speak at John Simpson junior high school auditorium Monday, Dec. 8, at 8 p. m. on "America and Japan in Asia."

Author of "Behind the Rising Sun," and a number of recent provocative magazine articles urging United States action at once against Japan's "New Order" in Asia, Young covered the Orient for 13 years as foreign correspondent for International News Service.

He is married to the former Marjorie Willis, daughter of J. Edgar Willis, Mansfield, and on a visit here last year gave News-Journal readers, through an interview, the detailed story of his 61 days imprisonment in Tokyo by Japanese "thought police" for writing a series of articles on the breakdown of the Nipponese invasion of China.

Since his visit here, Young has been on an extended lecture tour throughout the United States. He has also published his book and several magazine articles.

University club sponsors consider the lecture especially timely in view of the present crisis in the Pacific and the conversations at Washington between Secretary of State Hull and Japanese envoys Normura and Kurusu on possible settlement of U. S.-Japanese difficulties.

Describing internal conditions in Japan before an audience recently Young said, "Christianity foreign schools and firms are finished. Civic clubs and Anglo-American-Japanese organizations have been intimidated and threatened; churches have been pressured; foreign newspapers suppressed; the Salvation Army officers jailed; missionaries are held in a series of religious persecutions; and foreign newspaper correspondents have been jailed—two died at the hands of prison authorities; food is rationed and the Japanese people are desperate from their self created state of seige."

There is no charge for the lecture.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

FADING STOCKS RALLY, LEADERS REMAIN IN RUT

Fact That Share Marks Had Fallen To Year's Low Brings Out Bids.

NEW YORK — Falling trends were halted for selected stocks in today's market but many leaders were unable to climb out of the rut.

Steels, which led the retreat of Wednesday, did better at the start and fractional improvement appeared in other depatrments. Prices generally were a shade uneven near the second hour. Dealings slowed after a fast opening.

Scattered bids were attracted, brokers said, by the fact the share averages had dropped to around their low marks of the year and the idea arose that at least a temporary technical comeback might be in the cards.

Boardrooms scanned the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing bank clearings in 23 cities for the week ended yesterday, which included the Thanksgiving holiday, were 17 6 per cent below the preceding week's aggregate but 22 3 per cent larger than the corresponding period a year ago.

Holders of building material company stocks found some satisfaction in the summary of the Engineering News-Record placing heavy construction awards for the week concluded Tuesday at 24 per cent above the like 1940 days.

Mr Grant Blossom, R. "After taking Bee Bee's for only a few days I could notice a big difference in the way I felt All those terrible pains and my nervousness and nightly rising are all a memory If any one takes Bee Bee's for one week it will surely help you Bee Bee's was a Godsend to me I surely will be glad to recommend this grand medicine Bee Bees to everyone"
